RBI Should Offer Digi-Payment Licences On-Tap, says Industry

MORE ACCESS Firms seek access to Aadhaar database for faster e-KYC

Bengaluru: The Reserve Bank of India should consider offering licences in the digital payments space 'on-tap', rather than giving them only through a specific window...

Letting wallet companies allow payments up to ₹50,000 with minimum KYC could also boost digital payments... Naveen Surya, chairman emeritus, PCI, Vishwajit Patel, chairman of PCI, Loney Antony, co-chair of PCI and PCI executive director Gaurav Chopra met the committee on behalf of the industry.

like what markets regulator Sebi allows for mutual funds. This could help payment entities have a reduced cost structure and allow them to onboard customers seamlessly.

There is an urgent need for setting up of a centralized KYC bureau to avoid duplication of cost across industry participants, said Surya. Also, there should be some incentives for companies which are bearing the cost of KYC, otherwise it will never work, he felt.

In order to compete with cash transactions which can be done without PAN details up to ₹50,000, the payment industry wants to replicate the experience in digital payments. The regulator could look into allowing wallet firms to allow payments up to ₹50,000 with minimum KYC which the industry feels will help fight a lot of small value cash transactions.
