WEATHER

CITY	MAX(°C)	MIN((°C)
SINGAPORE	34	25	CL
HONG KONG	22	19	CL
TOKYO	14	4	CL
LONDON	12	3	CL
DUBAI	23	19	CL
SAN FRANCISO	CO 20	11	S
NEW YORK	8	0	S
MOSCOW	5	1	CL
S= sunny, CL= clear,
H=hazy, R= rainy

THUMBNAILS

A man dressed as St Patrick poses with a female Irish police officer at the annual St Patricks Day parade through in Dublin on Sunday.

China landslide: The toll from Friday's landslide in China`s Shanxi Province increased to 10 while an equal number of people were reported to be missing, according to a media report on Sunday. The accident in the township of Zaoling in Linfen City, when a landslide toppled two residential buildings, a makeshift house and a public bathhouse. Later, Seven bodies were found at the site.

Earthquake in Greece: The Greek geological experts said an earthquake with a preliminary magnitude of 4.5 has hit the western island of Zakynthos, but no damage has been reported. The temblor struck at 1:49 p.m. (1149 GMT) on Sunday. The epicenter was 16 km east of Zakynthos. Later, Seven bodies were found at the site.

NZ prepares to bury dead astollreaches 50

34 injured victims are still in Christchurch Hospital, 12 in critical condition

ASSOCIATED PRESS CHRISTCHURCH, 17 MARCH

nguished relatives were anxiously waiting on Sunday for _authorities to release the remains of those who were killed in massacres at two mosques in the New Zealand city of Christchurch, while authorities announced the death toll from the racist attacks had risen to 50. Islamic law calls for bodies to be cleansed and buried as soon as possible after death, usually within 24 hours. But two days after the worst terrorist attack in the country's modern history, relatives remained unsure when they would be able to bury their loved ones.

Police Commissioner Mike Bush said police were working with pathologists and coroners to release the bodies as soon as they could.

"We have to be absolutely clear on the cause of death and confirm their identity before that can happen," he

"But we are so aware of the cultural and religious needs. So we are doing that as quickly and as sensitively as possible." Police said they had released a preliminary list of the victims to families, which has helped give closure to some relatives who were waiting for any news.

The scale of the tragedy and the task still ahead became clear as supporters arrived from across the country to help with the burial rituals in Christchurch and authorities sent in backhoes to dig new graves in a Muslim burial area that was newly fenced off and blocked from view with white netting.

The suspect in the shootings, 28-year-old white supremacist Brenton Harrison Tarrant, appeared in court on Saturday amid strict secu-

People gather in front of floral tributes at a memorial for victims of the mosque attacks, in Christchurch on Sunday. AFP

Hero refugee chased mosque gunman away: When

Afghan refugee Abdul Aziz

saw a man brandishing a gun outside his mosque in Christchurch, he ran towards the attacker armed with the only weapon he could find~ a hand-held credit card machine. But the death toll could have been much higher if not for the heroic actions of Aziz, an Australian citizen, whose efforts to distract and chase the gunman away have attracted widespread praise.

know," Aziz said as local Muslims gathered to thank him for saving relatives and friends.

much lives as I could, even if one was setting off firecrackers, Aziz became suspicious and ran out, grabbing a small credit card processing device.

Outside, he was stunned to find an armed man. "When he saw the gun in my hands, I don't know what happened,

he dropped the gun and I chased him with my own gun... I managed to throw the gun on his car and smash the car window, then he was

I lose my life," Aziz said.

"I just wanted to save as Initially thinking some-

"You don't have much rity, shackled and wearing all-white prison garb, and showed no emotion when the judge read him one murder charge and said more would likely follow.

Bush said at a news conference on Sunday that they found another body at Al Noor mosque as they finished removing the victims, bringing the number of people killed there to 42. Another seven people were killed at Linwood mosque and one more person died later at Christchurch Hospital.

Another 34 victims time to think, whatever you remained at Christchurch think of, you just do it, you Hospital, where officials said 12 were in critical condition. And a young child who was in a children's hospital in Auckland was also listed as crit-

Dozens of Muslim supporters gathered at a center set up for victims, families and friends across the road from the hospital, where many had flown in from around New Zealand to offer support. About two dozen men received instructions on their duties Sunday morning, which included Muslim burial cus-

Nine Pakistani nationals have been killed in the terror attack, authorities said.

'Suspicious package' shutters NZ airport

CHRISTCHURCH, 17 MARCH

New Zealand police closed Dunedin airport late Sunday after a suspicious device was reported on the airfield.

"Dunedin Airport is currently closed," a statement said. "Police are at the scene and specialist teams have been deployed to determine the nature of the package."

New Zealand is currently on a state of high alert after a gunman, who is believed to have lived in Dunedin, killed 50 people in two mosques filled with worshippers.

An Air New Zealand staff member on the scene, who was not authorised to speak to the press, said the terminal building had not been evacuated. Only a handful of flights were due to arrive to the airport in the southeastern city, as the scare came in the late evening.

According to tracker Flightaware, Air New Zealand flight 691 from Wellington had been circling about the city for almost an hour before returning to its destina-

The silhouette of a woman is reflected in a puddle as she crosses a square in front of the Peter and Paul Cathedral in Saint Petersburg on Sunday.

Theresa May hopes to be third time lucky with Brexit vote

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA LONDON. 17 MARCH

British Prime Minister Theresa May on Sunday called on her rebellious MPs to do the patriotic thing to strike an honourable compromise over Brexit as she prepares to table her twice-defeated withdrawal agreement to another Parliament vote next week, hoping it would prove third time lucky for her.

Her latest plea came at the end of a frenetic week in Westminster as MPs voted on a flurry of motions, not just ruling out leaving the European Unionwith May's deal but also without any deal in place at all, calling for a delay to the March 29 Brexit Day deadline. May warned deeply divided Brexiteers within her own party and across the House of Commons that failure to once again support her deal, which was defeat-

May warned that failure to once again support her deal would mean the UK may not leave the EU for many months and may rule out Brexit altogether

ed by a resounding 230-vote margin in January and a smaller 149-vote margin last week, would mean the UK may not leave the EU for many months and may even rule out Brexit altogether. She urged MPs to get behind her improved deal before a European Council summit in Brussels next week, with legally binding changes to the controversial Irish backstop clause addressing concerns that the UK could be tied to EU rules indefinitely. If Parliament can find a way to back the Brexit deal before European Council, the UK will leave the EU this spring, without having to take part in the European elections If it cannot, we will not leave the EU for many months, if ever, she writes in The Sunday Telegraph'.

As things stand, May is hoping to return to Brussels with a Parliament-backed deal to seek a short delay until June 30 to complete procedures.

It is for the EU to decide the terms and conditions of any extension because legally the UK is still due to leave the economic bloc on March 29. With European Parliament elections scheduled to take place towards the end of May, if the UK Parliament remains deadlocked over an exit strategy, the EU is expected to agree to only a lengthy delay to the Article 50 Brexit mechanism.

Such a move would necessitate Britain's participation in the European Parliament

Orban grapples with EU as corruption

concerns rise

Biden's verbal slip about campaign draws Dems cheers

Former US Vice President Joe Biden speaks during the first State Democratic dinner in Dover on Saturday.

ASSOCIATED PRESS DOVER, 17 MARCH

Did Joe Biden accidentally reveal his plans to run for the White House? Or was it just another slip of the tongue by the former vice president with a reputation for veering off script?

In a keynote speech at a dinner for the Delaware Democratic Party, Biden boasted Saturday that he has "the most progressive record of anybody running." The only problem is that Biden hasn't announced whether he will launch a third run for the White House, despite repeatedly teasing the possibility.

He quickly corrected himself, clarifying that he meant to say "anybody who would run," then adding "I didn't mean it" while a cheering crowd in his home state nearly drowned him out.

Although Biden has been known to go off script, his remark is likely to be viewed as a Washington-style gaffe ~ a case of accidentally telling the truth. During the rest of his speech he sounded very much like a candidate-in-waiting. He repeatedly attacked President Donald Trump, accusing him of stoking division and anger, and bemoaned that the ascendant "new left" of his own party has criticized him for being cordial toward Republicans. "The only thing strong enough to tear America apart is America itself and we've seen its start," he said.

Biden accused Trump of backing away from America's role as a leader on the world stage and abandoning its allies. He said it's no coincidence that "fake news" ~ one of Trump's favorite labels ~ "has become the phrase of choice for every despot terrorizing his people." "We're literally in a battle for the soul of America," he said. More than a dozen Democrats have already launched formal 2020 presidential campaigns. After former Texas Rep. Beto O'Rourke's entered the race last week, Biden, who is his party's best-known and best-connected presidential prospect, is the last major contender to remain on the sidelines. But that didn't stop the friendly homestate crowd from reveling in the idea that will jump in.

Delaware Gov. John Carney said Biden "doesn't just look like he's back. He looks like he's ready for a fight."

Just minutes before Biden's slip of the tongue, though, Carney raised the possibility of a Biden campaign with a bit more delicacy.

"I am not up here to break any news tonight," Carney told the crowd. Then he added: "In my humble opinion, we have never needed Joe Biden more than we need him right now."

NY senator announces presidential run: New York Senator Kirsten Gillibrand on Sunday officially announced she would seek the Democratic party's nomination for the 2020 presidential election, taking aim at Donald Trump as she formally joined the crowded field of challengers.

In a video released Sunday morning, she said the national anthem posed the question: "Will brave win?" "Well, it hasn't always, and it isn't right now," she said. "Brave doesn't pit people against each other. Brave doesn't put money over lives. Brave doesn't spread hate. The announcement was widely expected after the 52-year-old champion of women's rights said she would be forming an exploratory committee. AFP

Catalonia: Thousands march in support of separatist leaders a bit frightened."

THE INDEPENDENT MADRID. 17 MARCH

Thousands of supporters of Catalan independence marched on Madrid to support politicians and activists who are on trial for their role $in\,an\,at tempt\,to\,secede\,from$ Spain. Organisers said 120,000 people marched in Spain's capital, while Spanish police put the number much lower at only 18,000.

Twelve Catalan politicians and activists are standing trail for staging a banned independence referendum for the northeastern region of Catalonia. Nine of those on trial are accused of rebellion, which could see them sentenced to up to 25 years in prison. The October 2017 referendum passed with overwhelming support, with 92 per cent in favour and a turnout of 43 per cent of the electorate.

However, Spain had already declared the referendum unconstitutional and some observers said the vote failed to meet international standards for elections.

protests have previously taken Torra, told reporters that the the issues of Catalanoia.

Demonstrators carry banners showing portraits of imprisoned Catalan separatist leaders during a pro independence demonstration in Madrid on Saturday.

place in Catalonia and some European cities, but Saturday's march was the first major separatist protest in the capital. The 120,000 crowd size quoted by organisers was well beyond expectations. There were no reports of violence at the march.

A banner reading "Selfdetermination is not a crime" opened the demonstration, which was led by Catalan politicians and organised by more than 60 civil society groups across Spain. Catalo-Large pro-independence nia's regional president, Quim general election, in which march was needed to decry a trial which he has described as a "farce". Spain has insisted the judicial process is fair and its courts are fully independent from the government, but critics of the trail believe the 12 defendants are political prisoners who are being tried for their beliefs.

The trial is about to enter the fifth week of hearings and has attracted close attention across the country.

A sentence is not expected until after Spain's 28 April

At least 50 killed in flash floods in Indonesia's Papua

AGENCE FRANCE-PRESSE JAYAPURA, 17 MARCH

At least 50 people have been killed by flash floods in Indonesia's eastern Papua province, an official said Sunday, as rescuers raced to find more victims of the disaster.

The floods in Sentani, near the provincial capital of Jayapura, were triggered by torrential rain and subsequent landslides on Saturday, and also left 59 people injured.

Dozens of homes were damaged by floodwaters, national disaster agency spokesman Sutopo Purwo Nugroho said.

"The number of casualties and impact of the disaster will likely increase as search and rescue teams are still trying to reach other affected areas," he added.

"The floods were likely caused by a landslide." The waters had receded but officials were still trying to evacuate people. "The joint search and rescue teams are still doing evacuations and not all affected areas have been reached because of fallen trees, rocks, mud and other material," Nugroho said.

istering oxygen to a victim who appeared trapped beneath a fallen tree. Uprooted trees and other debris were strewn across muddy roads, while at Jayapura's small airport a propeller plane lay partly crushed on a runway. Papua shares a border with independent Papua New Guinea on an island just north of Australia.

Video footage from the scene showed rescuers admin-

Flooding is not uncommon in Indonesia, especially during the rainy season which runs from October to April. In January, floods and land-slides killed at least 70 people on Sulawesi island, while earlier this month hundreds in West Java province were forced to evacuate when torrential rains triggered severe flooding. The Southeast Asian archipelago of some 17,000 islands is one of the most disasterprone nations on Earth, straddling the Pacific Ring of Fire, where tectonic plates collide.

Earthquakes and volcanic eruptions are common. In December, the western part of Java island was slammed by a deadly volcano-triggered tsunamithat killed about 400

Traders say 80 businesses hit in rampage: Some 80 shops and businesses on the Champs-Elysees avenue in Paris were vandalised this weekend when "yellow vest"

protesters went on the rampage, with about 20 looted or torched, retailers said on Sun-

Saturday's demonstrations were characterised by a sharp increase in violence after weeks of dwindling turnout, with hooded protesters lootpeople.

headed to a breaking point, calls are increasing for greater scrutiny of his government's spending of the bloc's funds. An opposition lawmaker in Hungary has gathered more than 470,000 signa-

Hungarian Prime Minister

on Friday in Budapest.

BUDAPEST, 17 MARCH

Viktor Orban gives a speech

As the Hungarian Prime Minister's conflicts with the European Union appear

tures to pressure Prime Minister Viktor Orban into joining the budding European Public Prosecutor's Office as Orban's Fidesz party may be suspended or expelled next week from the main centerright group in the European Parliament.

The EU has allocated Hungary 25 billion euros ($28.3 billion) in the 2014-2020 budget period, but critics say funds are often spent on overpriced or unnecessary projects padding the pockets of the allies of Orban, whose anti-EU campaigns over migration policies and national sovereignty have gotten him into trouble with the European People's Party as well as with the EU itself, which Orban accuses of increasing its powers to the detriment of the member

Despite the conflicts with EU, Hungary has been among the most successful EU countries in retrieving the bloc's support, with 32 percent of available funds drawn down from the current budget. An EU proposal for the 2021-2027 period, however, could see Hungary's subsidies cut by 24 percent compared to the current seven-year cycle ~ a budget restructuring neces-

France cleans up Champs-Elysees after yellow vest riots

ASSOCIATED PRESS PARIS, 17 MARCH

Paris cleaned up one of the world's most glamorous avenues Saturday after resurgent rioting by yellow vest protesters angry at President Emmanuel Macron stunned the nation. Luxury stores, restaurants and banks on the Champs-Elysees assessed damage Sunday after they were ransacked or blackened by life-threatening Tourists took pictures as shop owners tried to repair broken windows and city workers scrubbed away graffiti, much of it targeting Macron.

The renewed violence by a movement that had been fizzling in recent weeks was a wakeup call to a president seen as favouring the elite.

Macron promised a crackdown on troublemakers he said "want to destroy the republic, at the risk of killing people."

But he also tweeted that the rioting showed that his government needs to do more to address protesters' concerns.

Macron cut short a weekend ski trip to meet Saturday night with security officials at the crisis center overseeing the police response.

On the Champs-Elysees, an eerie calm replaced the hourslong chaos of the day before on the street that Parisians call "the most beautiful avenue in the world."No police were visible Sunday, and traffic rolled down cobblestones that had been the scene of battles between rioters and police struggling to contain them. In the midst of Saturday's violence, firefighters said that a mother and her child were barely saved from a building set ablaze because it housed a bank on the ground floor.

Yellow Vest protesters hold a French national flag reading 'Freedom, Equality, Fraternity, my A!' on the Champs-Elysees in Paris on Saturday.

Smoke from fires set by protesters mingled with clouds of tear gas sprayed by police.

The protesters sought to revive their movement Saturday by marking the end of a two-month-long national debate called by Macron that protesters say failed to answer their demands for economic justice.

ing and torching shops along the famed avenue. Since the beginning, the prestigious avenue, which is known for its shops, cafes and luxury boutiques, has been the focal point for the demonstrations which have often turned violent, sparking running battles between police and protesters.

sitated in part by Brexit. AP states.