The development is particularly significant given that Pakistan and China, both countries with which India has had diplomatic challenges at the UN, supported the move.

India and U.S. resolve to work through their trade differences

Secretary of State Pompeo meets Jaishankar, says hurdles can be negotiated

SUHASINI HAIDAR
NEW DELHI
India and the U.S. resolved to "work through" their differences which have led to an impasse on trade issues as External Affairs Minister S. Jaishankar hosted U.S. Secretary of State Mike Pompeo in Delhi ahead of a meeting between Prime Minister Narendra Modi and U.S. President Donald Trump in Osaka this week.

"If you trade with somebody, and particularly if they are your biggest trading partners, it's impossible that you don't have trade issues. But I think the sign of a mature relationship is that ability to negotiate your way through that and find common ground," Mr. Jaishankar said at the end of their meeting on Wednesday, although neither side announced any positive outcomes from the discussions. Mr. Pompeo and Mr. Jaishankar are understood to have thrashed out issues, including tariffs and counter-tariffs imposed by New Delhi and Washington on each other in the past year, as well as the U.S.'s specific concerns with India's proposed laws on e-commerce and data localisation, on price caps and market access.

"The U.S. is clear that it seeks greater market access and the removal of trade barriers in our economic relationship, and today I addressed these differences in the spirit of friendship and I think we will be able to resolve these issues in the interests of our two countries," said Mr. Pompeo.

Modi says he is pained by Jharkhand lynching

'Don't insult the State by calling it a hub of such incidents'

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT
NEW DELHI

Breaking his silence on the Jharkhand lynching, Prime Minister Narendra Modi said in the Rajya Sabha on Wednesday that he was pained by the incident, and the law would take its course in the case. However, he criticised the "insults" hurled on the State over the lynching.

"Some people in the Rajya Sabha are calling Jharkhand a hub of lynching. Is this fair? Why are they insulting a State? None of us have the right to insult the State of Jharkhand," he said.

Jharkhand will go to the polls later this year.

Whether it is Jharkhand, or West Bengal or Kerala, incidents of violence should be treated in the same manner and the perpetrators of violence should get the message that the entire country is one on this issue, the Prime Minister said.

In the Jharkhand lynching, Tabrez Ansari, 24, was tied to an electric pole and beaten up on suspicion of being a thief.

The suspects recorded his plight on a mobile phone and forced him to chant 'Jai Shri Ram' and 'Jai Hanuman'.

1.02 lakh more people excluded from Assam NRC

GUWAHATI

The office of the Coordinator for the National Register of Citizens (NRC) in Assam on Wednesday published an "additional draft exclusion list" consisting of the names of 1,02,462 people.

This list is different from the one containing the names of 40.07 lakh people excluded last year from the 3.29 crore applicants.

This additional list also contains names included in the draft NRC published on July 30, 2018, but subsequently found ineligible for three reasons. "People found to be declared foreigners or doubtful (D) voters or with cases pending at Foreigners' Tribunals discovered after publication of the draft NRC are in the additional list. So are their descendants, as applicable," a government spokesperson said. The other categories in the extra list are those found ineligible while appearing as witnesses during claims and objection hearings.

CHANDIGARH

Four people died reportedly of asphyxiation in Haryana's Rohtak on Wednesday after inhaling toxic fumes while cleaning a septic tank, the police said.

The police said the four included an official of the Public Health Department, who had reportedly arranged the other three for cleaning a drain-cum-septic tank.

"All the four were aged between 25 and 30 years and had gone to clean the septic tanks without any protective gear or masks," DSP, Rohtak, Gorakhpal told The Hindu over phone. Titanic hero tweets on Chennai drought

Leonardo DiCaprio cites BBC report, highlights plight of the residents

K. LAKSHMI
CHENNAI

Now, everyone seems to love a good drought. As Chennai reels under a dire water crisis, it seems to have grabbed eyeballs across the world. Twitter's big news for the city on Wednesday was actor Leonardo DiCaprio tweeting about the Chennai water crisis, citing a report on the issue. He had tweeted: "Only rain can save Chennai from this situation."

Citing BBC News, Mr. DiCaprio, a United Nations Messenger of Peace with a special focus on climate change, has written about wells that are empty and a city that is without water. He also highlighted the plight of Chennaiites who are scrambling for water and waiting in queues for long hours to fetch water.

"As the water levels depleted, hotels and restaurants started to shut down temporarily; and the air con was turned off in the city's metro. Officials in the city continue to try and find alternate sources of water-but the community continues to pray for rain," read his post.

Interestingly, Mr. DiCaprio, probably known best for his role in the Oscar-winning Titanic, and

Several people took to social media to thank Leonardo DiCaprio for his concern. •AFP himself an Academy award winner, has taken on the avatar of a climate change campaigner. His recently released documentary Ice on Fire, which he produced and narrates, received rave reviews. He said the documentary focussed on never-before-seen solutions to the environmental crisis.

But that was not all. Earlier last week, U.S. Senator Bernie Sanders too highlighted a BBC report on Chennai running out of water in a social media post.

Several people took to social media to thank Mr. DiCaprio for his concern and called the crisis an example of political tension within the country. Some Instagram users like Mahesh Manoj blamed it on residents who were not keen on rainwater harvesting in their houses; this had led to a decline in groundwater levels and a serious water scarcity.

Back at home, though, it is clear that the water crisis has certainly been rendered political. Saidapet MLA and former Chennai Mayor Ma. Subramanian, who staged a protest seeking a solution for the water crisis, noted that the issue was making headlines in several international newspapers, but charged that "the State government was yet to realise the gravity of the situation".
