USA PAINTING STOLEN BY NAZIS RECOVERED

A painting that was stolen by the Nazis has been recovered from an upstate New York museum by the FBI. The work Winter by American artist Gari Melchers was part of the collection at the Arkell Museum before it was recovered. Court documents say German publisher and philanthropist Rudolf Mosse acquired the painting in 1900. The Nazi government had seized the painting in 1933.

After 4-hour standoff, man threatening to make museum 'hell' arrested

Saint-Raphael: Police in southern France on Wednesday detained a man who had broken into a museum overnight and threatened to turn it into a "hell", provoking a fourhour standoff, authorities said. A search was still on for a possible accomplice at the archeology museum in the town of Saint-Raphael, the top regional official said. Officer's from an elite crisis intervention unit and a bomb disposal squad had surrounded the site, where several messages in Arabic had been scrawled on the walls, including: "The museum is going to become a hell".

Tunis: Tunisia's new President Kais Saied took the oath of office on Wednesday after his surprise election victory over champions of the political establishment. Saied, a conservative academic with no previous political experience who won the overwhelming support of younger voters in an October 13 runoff, was sworn in before members of the constituent assembly and other top state bodies. The poll followed the death in July of Beji Caid Essebsi, Tunisia's first president freely elected by universal suffrage.

Couple saved from landslide by their cats

Rome: An Italian couple survived a landslide that caused their house to collapse after being woken by their cats, giving them time to escape, media reported Wednesday. "My wife got up because Simba and Mose, our cats, were making a noise and woke us up," Claudio Piana told the Secolo XIX newspaper, as violent storms lashed northern Italy, killing a taxi driver and forcing dozens of people from their homes. "She realised they were playing with a piece of plaster which had just fallen off the ceiling. Then we saw cracks opening in the walls," he said.

Google claims 'quantum supremacy' in breakthrough that can change computing

DOUGLAS BUSVINE BERLIN, OCTOBER 23

GOOGLE SAID on Wednesday it had achieved a breakthrough in computer research, by solving a complex problem in minutes with a so-called quantum computer that would take today's most powerful supercomputer thousands of years to crack.

Official confirmation of the breakthrough in quantum computing came in a paper published in science journal Nature, after weeks of controversy following the leak of a draft, over whether Google's claim of "quantum supremacy" was valid.

Computer scientists have for decades sought to harness the behaviour of sub-atomic particles that can simultaneously exist in different states — in contrast to the "real" world that people perceive around them. So, whereas traditional computing relies on bits, or ones and zeros, quantum computing uses quantum bits, or qubits, that can be both one and zero at the same time.

Google CEO Sundar Pichai compared the achievement to building the first rocket to leave the Earth's atmosphere and touch the edge of space, an advance that brought interplanetary travel into the realm of the possible.

"For those of us working in science and technology, it's the 'hello world' moment we've been waiting for — the most meaningful milestone to date in the quest to date to make quantum computing a reality," Pichai wrote in a blog. REUTERS

QUANTUM MACHINES

WHAT ARE THEY?

■ A quantum machine operates in a very different manner from regular computers. It relies on the ways in which some objects act at the subatomic level when exposed to extreme cold, like the metal chilled to 460 degrees below zero inside Google's machine.

WHAT CAN THEY DO?

A mathematical calculation that the largest supercomputers could not complete in under 10,000 years was done in 3 minutes, 20 seconds, Google said.

One day, they could power advances in AI, or overwhelm the encryption that protects computers vital to national security.

Hong Kong officially kills extradition Bill

Move, one of protesters' 5 demands, unlikely to end unrest

JESSIE PANG & TWINNIE SIU

HONG KONG, OCTOBER 23

HONG KONG'S legislature on Wednesday formally withdrew planned legislation that would have allowed extraditions to mainland China, but the move was unlikely to end months of unrest as it met just one of five demands of pro-democracy protesters.

The rallying cry of the protesters, who have trashed public buildings in the Chinese-ruled city, set street fires and thrown petrol bombs at police, has been "five demands, not one less", meaning the withdrawal of the Bill make no difference. Hong Kong leader Carrie Lam had said many times the Bill was as good as dead and said that other demands, including universal suffrage and an amnesty for all those charged with rioting, were beyond her control.

Protesters are also calling for her to stand down and for an independent inquiry into perceived police brutality during a long hot summer of running battles on the streets.

Top US diplomat in Ukraine testifies Trump tied aid to investigations of political rivals Big blow to Trump's

MICHAELDSHEAR& NICHOLAS FANDOS WASHINGTON, OCTOBER 23

WILLIAM TAYLOR, the United States' top diplomat in Ukraine, told impeachment investigators privately Tuesday that President Donald Trump held up vital security aid for the country and refused a White House meeting with Ukraine's leader until he agreed to make a public pledge to investigate Trump's political rivals.

In testimony built around careful notes he took during his tenure and delivered in defiance of State Department orders, Taylor sketched out in remarkable detail a quid-pro-quo pressure campaign on Ukraine that Trump and his allies have long denied, in which the President conditioned the entire US relationship with Ukraine on a promise that the country would investigate former US Vice

Russian forces deploy at Syrian border under new accord

SUZAN FRASER& LEFTERIS PITARAKIS AKCAKALE, OCTOBER 23

RUSSIAN MILITARY police began patrols on part of the Syrian border Wednesday, quickly moving to implement an accord with Turkey that divvies up control of northeastern Syria. The Kremlin told Kurdish fighters to pull back from the entire frontier or else face being "steamrolled" by Turkish forces.

Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan echoed those warnings, saying his military would resume its offensive against Kurdish fighters if the new arrangements are not carried out. Erdogan and Russian President Vladimir Putin reached an agreement Tuesday that would transform the map of northeast Syria, installing their forces along the border and filling the void left by the abrupt withdrawal of American troops. The Kurdish fighters, who once relied on the U.S. forces as protection from Turkey, were given a deadline of next Tuesday evening to pull back from border areas they have not already left.

Iraq, meanwhile, closed the door on the US military's attempt to keep the troops leaving Syria on its soil. Iraqi Defense Minister Najah al-Shammari told The Associated Press that those troops were only "transiting" Iraq and would leave within four weeks, heading either to Kuwait, Qatar or the United States.

Al-Shammari spoke after meeting US Defence Secretary Mark Esper, who earlier this week had said the American forces from Syria would remain in Iraq. AP undermined national security: Parliament probe

PRESS TRUST OF INDIA

COLOMBO, OCTOBER 23

SRI LANKAN President Maithripala Sirisena "actively undermined" national security a parliamentary committee that probed the Easter suicide bombings said on Wednesday as it blamed the spy chief for the intelligence failure that led to the country's deadliest terror attack in April.

Nine suicide bombers carried out a series of blasts that tore through three churches and three luxury hotels on Easter Sunday, killing 277 people. The Islamic State claimed the attacks, but the government blamed local extremist group National Thowheeth Iamaath for the bombings.

Sirisena suspended police chief Pujith Jayasundara as well as the defence secretary as part of the revamping of the security establishment following the attack.

In its 1,649-page report, the Parliament Select Committee (PSC) on the Easter attacks said that the Director of State Intelligence Service (SIS) is primarily responsible for the intelligence failure that led to the attacks.

"The PSC notes that intelligence information related to the attacks was first received by the Director SIS on April 4, 2019 but there were delays from his end to share it with relevant intelligence and security personnel," it said.

The report said that apart from the SIS, the secretary to the ministry of defence, the police chief, the chief of national intelligence and directorate of military intelligence had also failed

lord Joaquin "El Chapo" Guzman. He had reason to be cocksure. In response to his capture in an upscale neighbourhood, hundreds of heavily-armed Sinaloa Cartel henchmen, guns blazing, were pouring into Culiacan, briefly taking the modern city of about a million people near Mexico's Pacific coast hostage.

Within hours they had pried him loose from authorities.

It was like nothing Mexico had seen before, a military-style operation that outfoxed and outnumbered security forces, leaving the city shocked and smoldering. The show of strength dashed hopes the cartel was seriously weakened by the life sentence the elder Guzman received

Testing times for tofu

The planet needs China to curb its appetite for meat

A man walks past a restaurant serving US beef in Shanghai. Around the globe, China's growing hunger for red meat, specifically, has seen its beef imports grow 40-fold between 2010 and 2018. AP

THE PLANET needs China to curb its appetite for meat. In the first three decades of the "reform and opening" era the number of farmed animals in the country tripled. Raising them polluted water supplies and gobbled up scarce arable land. Around the globe, China's growing hunger for red meat, specifically, has seen its beef imports grow 40-fold between 2010 and 2018. The boom threatens Latin American forests and Arctic ice caps alike, as cattle-rearing prompts land-clearing and emits greenhouse gases.

To be fair, China's 1.4bn people are being asked to show a self-restraint unknown in the gluttonous West. Even now, in a China where children yawn at dishes their grandparents once saw only at weddings and high holidays, meat consumption per person is only half of America's. But China's government, too, wants its people to eat less meat. Obesity, type-2 diabetes and high blood pressure are taking a growing toll. To curb such afflictions, guidelines issued in 2016 urge adults to eat just 40-75 grammes of meat a day, or about half the current national average. Market signals are also pushing shoppers to cut back. China's most popular meat, pork, is nearly 70% costlier than a year ago because herds are being wiped out by African swine fever, a disease harmless to people but lethal to pigs.

Even before this latest animal epidemic, Chinese living in wealthier cities were having qualms about excessive meat-eating. In 2017 a survey of big-city residents found 36% of respondents intending to eat less pork, red meat and poultry in the year ahead. They cited concerns about their health, the environment and food safety, in that order. But a solution common in other countries—declaring oneself strictly vegetarian or vegan—remains strikingly rare. Less than 2% of the Chinese population is vegetarian, the food industry estimates. The proportion is 10% in neighbouring Taiwan, an island with centuries of shared Chinese culture and history. Its contrast with China in terms of attitudes to vegetarianism reveals much about the mainland's society, and how it either embraces or resists change.

In the West, angst about animal welfare or disgust at the idea of meat are big motives for vegetarians. Chinese consumers are less squeamish. Few mention animal suffering in surveys about dietary choices, and fewer still a distaste for meat. This week Chaguan visited Number 8 Market, a bustling foodie's delight in the coastal city of Xiamen. He found locals admiring butcher's stalls resembling anatomy classrooms, with body parts from tongues to trotters laid out for inspection. Chen Zhiqiang, a young man giving a chunk of pork a discerning prod, concedes that some children claim to dislike meat. But it is necessary for their health, he declares, "so you have to sneak it into them with soup." Nor are Xiamen's market-folk greatly impressed by showy self-denial—another staple of Western vegetarianism. China was too poor, too recently, to indulge in that sort of virtue-signalling. A fishmonger nicknamed A Feng remembers her own impoverished, largely meatless childhood. Today, she says, people can pursue a balanced diet, which she defines as meat twice or three times a week, with fish as an "everyday necessity". She is backed up by Ms Lin, a nearby seller of tofu, a staple of vegetarian Chinese dishes. Beancurd is nutritious stuff, says Ms Lin, but the human body "can't stand" a fully meatless diet. Some devout Buddhists go without meat on the first and fifteenth days of the lunar month, notes the tofu-seller, then "complain that they have no energy".

Alternative lifestyles are a hard sell in China. Those who shun meat are generally shy about standing out, says Zhou Qiyu, a manager at Whole Perfect Foods, a company founded in 1993. It specialises in mock meat, from plant-based sausages to hamburger patties made of peas, soyabeans, mushrooms and other vegetables. Even devoutly religious he suggests, speaking at his company's stand ism, she beams. at a vegetarian trade fair held in Xiamen's vast exhibition complex between October 10th and 14th. A desire to fit in makes mock Religious faith led David Yin to stop eatmeat "super appropriate" for entertaining

The Buddhist and Taoist faiths have long been pillars of Chinese vegetarianism. One reason for Taiwan's large number of vegetarians is that the island has never been ruled by the Communist Party and so was spared the Cultural Revolution, which from 1966-76 uprooted religious and cultural traditions on the mainland. Buddhist monks are meant to avoid any food that involves killing, though they may eat meat received as alms. The rules for lay believers are less strict but have still inspired several schools of Buddhist, meatless cooking, often involving elaborate mock-meat dishes, from fake ducks to fish carved from beancurd.

vegetarians want to be seen as part of society,

The vegetarian fair in Xiamen draws several Buddhist nuns and monks in grey or brown robes. Fa Man, a nun from Jiangsu province, sees a link between China's new prosperity and a greater interest in health, the environment and even in spiritual matters. All of that should strengthen vegetarianing meat in his 30s. In 2012 he founded King's Joy, a vegetarian restaurant in a lovely courtyard beside the Lama Temple in old Beijing. Mr Yin and his son, Gary, the head chef, have ditched the traditional Buddhist prohibition on garlic and chives, flavourings known as "small meats" and shunned as too stimulating. Traditional vegetarian cooking for the devout allows only ginger as a spice, and with such strict rules "you lose too much flavour," says the elder Mr Yin. He hopes that clientseven if initially drawn by tree-shaded courtyards and famous guests—will see that planteating is healthy, tasty and respectful of the environment and animals. But, he admits, "My goal is aligned with reality, which is that 95% of our customers are not vegetarians." It is a shrewd way to promote social change in today's China, a place skittish about non-conformity: pragmatic and tactful towards the majority culture, with good food as a reward.

RAMAPHOSA IS RUNNING OUT OF TIME TO REFORM SOUTH AFRICA

The need for speed

If the president is not willing to upset people, the economy will not grow

IN 1991 Cyril Ramaphosa went fishing with Roelf Meyer, his opposite number in the negotiations to end apartheid. When Mr Meyer got a trout hook stuck deep in his hand, Mr Ramaphosa proved the only one able to extract it, with the aid of an analgesic dram of Scotch. The tale is part of South African political folklore. For some it symbolises how the man who in February 2018 became the country's president has long been able to forge relationships with any interlocutor — and to make sure they both get what they want, without too much pain. By the end of the constitutional convention, Mr Meyer later recalled, he felt that there was nothing the two of them could not resolve.

Twenty-five years after the end of apartheid, South Africa is at another perilous moment. Years of corruption under Jacob Zuma, the man Mr Ramaphosa replaced as president, ravaged a country that was already facing deep problems. Today the rainbow nation has unemployment of 29%, one of the highest rates in the world. Growth has been negative in three of the past six quarters. Public debt as a share of GDP is rising steadily, partly thanks to insolvent state-owned enterprises such as Eskom, a power utility that cannot keep the lights on. In the next few weeks Moody's may become the third large credit-rating agency to downgrade the country's debt to "junk" status, a signal that could send foreign capital fleeing.

In an interview with The Economist on October 13th, Mr Ramaphosa vowed to turn things round. He argues that soon the country will reap the benefits of the new (competent, honest) leaders he has installed at crucial institutions such as the prosecution and tax authorities. This month his government will unveil a new "growth strategy" and a budget. An overdue plan for Eskom is also in the works. Critics fret that Mr Ramaphosa is moving too slowly to fight graft and kickstart growth. He retorts that big reforms must be patiently negotiated. With the skills he honed as a union boss, constitutional architect and tycoon, he says he can ensure that "everybody rises from the table feeling that they are a winner."

Maybe so. The problem is that, in South Africa, only an elite few ever have a place at the table. Economic life is dominated by big business, big labour and big government. Firms face too little competition, cushy labour laws lock the jobless out of work and the public sector provides woeful services. Many well-paid teachers barely teach. Many bureaucrats do little but slow-walk paperwork and embezzle. Most are never held accountable. A quarter of South Africans enjoy a middle- or upper-class life, while the rest struggle to get by. When a country has an insider-outsider problem, you cannot let the insiders dictate terms.

Fortunately for Mr Ramaphosa, a better blueprint is available. In August Tito Mboweni, his rumbustious finance minister, published a paper proposing sweeping vet doable reforms. The document suggests easing visa rules for skilled migrants, lowering barriers to entry for small businesses, breaking up and privatising parts of Eskom, enhancing education standards, improving property rights for the poor and much more. Independent analysts broadly agree with the Treasury's estimate that if the plan were adopted, the economy could grow by 4-5% a year (more than double current forecasts). That is roughly the rate which economists think is required to put a dent in the hideous unemployment figures. It would surely be enough to avoid a downgrade from Moody's, too.

Will Mr Ramaphosa heed such good ad-

South Africa's President Cyril Ramaphosa during the announcement of the new cabinet in Pretoria on May 29. Reuters vice? The answer seems to be: somewhat. He says he endorses all Mr Mboweni's ideas, but slips in a crucial qualification—that "of course" these mooted changes cannot all be implemented at once. That sounds suspiciously like timidity. Mr Ramaphosa cannot boost growth without upsetting people. Public servants who do not serve the public need to be fired; pampered industries, unpampered; crooked bigwigs, locked up. All this will be hard. The pro-corruption lobby within the ruling African National Congress (ANC) is exceptionally powerful. Mr Ramaphosa is right to pay heed to intra-party politics and the ANC's union allies — to do otherwise would be naive. But he is wrong if he believes that fixing South Africa is like negotiating a strike, clinching a business deal or even ending apartheid. It requires more than finding common ground among vested interests. It requires leadership.

Boehringer's own petition

PRABHA RAGHAVAN NEW DELHI, OCTOBER 23

IN A blow to German drug giant Boehringer Ingelheim, the Delhi High Court has decided that the former's petition challenging the Indian drug regulator's approval of a stroke medicine marketed by a Pune-based firm was "unmerited".

Additionally, the court has found merit in arguments that Boehringer had caused a Kolkata-based neurologist to file a public interest litigation (PIL) raising safety issues with the approval before the German firm went to court itself.

On October 21, the court dismissed Boehringer's case and ordered it to pay a total of Rs 1,00,000 to the Drug Controller General of India (DCGI) and Pune-based Gennova Biopharmaceuticals. The Indian Express has viewed a copy of the court order, which was made public Wednesday evening.

"The petition is unmerited and is dismissed with costs quantified at Rs 50,000/- to be payable to each of the respondents. The said costs will be paid within a period of two weeks from today," stated the order by Justice Vibhu Bakhru.

Boehringer Ingelheim had approached the high court in August 2016 against the DCGI's approval to Gennova, a subsidiary of Emcure Pharmaceuticals, for its biologic drug 'Tenectase', marketed in India for treatment of acute ischemic stroke (AIS).

The German firm's Indian subsidiary had argued that Gennova's drug was a copy of its own complex biologic drug Metalyse (tenecteplase), which was approved only to treat heart attacks.

It had argued that marketing a biosimilar of its own drug to treat a different indication was "illegal" and raised safety concerns over such an approval. Boehringer has a separate drug, Actilyse (alteplase), which it markets for the treatment of ischemic stroke.

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU MUMBAI, OCTOBER 23

THE ENFORCEMENT Directorate (ED) has issued a lookout notice against non-executive director and promoter of crisisridden Dewan Housing Finance (DHFL), Dheeraj Wadhawan, even as KPMG — which has carried out the forensic audit – submitted a draft report which has reportedly found instances of fund diversion to the DHFL board.

Sources close to the Wadhawan family said it was earlier this year that lookout notices were issues against over 40 people, including against the promoters of companies that have an exposure of over Rs 200 crore with banks.

"There is no connection in relation to the ED case. Dheeraj will give his statement to the agencies once he is well and out of the hospital," sources said.

With the DHFL crisis getting murkier. lenders have started getting worried, with supersession of the board of the housing finance company or liquidation as options before them in the wake of reports about fund diversion and the involvement of underworld don Igbal Mirchi, said a banking source.

The KPMG report has reportedly found diversion of over Rs 19,000 crore of bank loans to DHFL's related entities, sources said.

Lenders have an exposure of more than Rs 30,000 crore in DHFL. Besides, mutual funds, pension bodies and investors have money locked in the company. Banks had earlier proposed to convert part of the debt into equity.

Sources in the financial sector have proposed superseding of the board of DHFL and taking the company to the bankruptcy court.

"If the company goes into liquidation, chances of recovering the funds are minimal. Banks will have to write off the loans. With the Mirchi link coming out in the open, many banks are now worried," said a banking source.

■ Earlier in April-May this year, the MCA had issued look-out notices against the promoters of DHFL, in connection with its enquiry into the piling debt of the firm; the MCA had issued lookout notices against all promoters of firms who had borrowed above Rs 200 crore

According to the ED, the Rs 225-crore land deal between Sunblink Real Estate Pvt Ltd and Iqbal Mirchi was negotiated on behalf of Dheeraj Wadhawan – popularly known as Baba Dewan and one of the promoters of DHFL.

The agency remand against a few of the arrested brokers who helped Sunblink clinch the deal also said that the brokers have allegedly said that the land deal was done on behalf of Dheeraj Wadhawan.

Bathija, the brother-in law of Dheeraj Wadhawan. The ED is yet to record Wadhawan's statement in the case as he is currently admitted in a hospital due to lung infection.

Earlier in April-May this year, the Ministry of Corporate Affairs (MCA) had issued lookout notices against the promoters of DHFL, in connection with its enquiry into the piling debt of the housing finance firm.

The MCA had issued lookout notices against all promoters of companies who had borrowed above Rs 200 crore from banks and were in a danger of defaulting on payments.

Meanwhile, amid indications that the patience of lenders is wearing thin, in the wake of reports about fund diversion and the involvement of an underworld don, the board of the crisis-ridden DHFL on Wednesday directed the company to review the key observations of KPMG's draft audit report and present a detailed response before the Audit Committee.

"The board also directed the company to share the responses with the lenders," the company said in a statement to the exchanges.

"We are waiting for the findings of the KPMG report. Sunblink is run by Sunny We will take a decision on the basis of the findings," it added.

> The board of DHFL took cognizance of the key observations from the draft report prepared by KPMG – appointed by Union Bank of India, the lead banker of the consortium, on behalf all the members of the consortium.

Wheat MSP raised by ₹85/quintal; lowest hike in last four years

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE NEW DELHI, OCTOBER 23

THE CENTRE on Wednesday refrained from announcing a big hike in the minimum support price(MSP) of cereal, as it kept the MSP of wheat at Rs 1,925 per quintal – an increase of Rs 85 per quintal, the lowest in last four years. However, a higher increase in MSP was recommended for lentil, as well as safflower and gram.

Further, the Cabinet Committee on Economic Affairs (CCEA), chaired by Prime Minister Narendra Modi, also gave nod to a hike in the MSPs of barley and rapeseed and mustard for Rabi Market Season (RMS) 2020-21.

For the rabi crops of 2019-20, the MSP of wheat has been fixed at Rs 1,925 per quintal against Rs 1,840 per quintal in 2018-19 — a hike of Rs 85 per quintal. The latest increase in wheat MSP is the lowest in last four years: Rs 105/quintal in 2018-19, Rs 110/quintal in 2017-18, and Rs 100/quintal in 2016-17.

However, an official statement, released after the CCEA decision, said that the 2019-20 MSP of wheat is 109 per cent of the all India weighted average production cost of wheat, i.e. Rs 923 per quintal. Wheat — mainly grown in Uttar Pradesh, Punjab, Madhya Pradesh and Haryana — is an important cereal crop contributing more than 16 per cent to the gross the country. Meanwhile, the MSP of barley has been set at Rs 1,525 per quintal, over Rs 1,440 per quintal declared last year, showing an increase of Rs 85 per quintal.

The MSPs of lentil, safflower and gram have been fixed at Rs 4,800, Rs 5,215 and Rs 4,875, respectively, for 2019-20. In 2018-19, the per quintal MSPs of lentil, safflower and gram were set at Rs 4,475, Rs 4,945 and Rs 4,620, respectively.

Further, the MSPs of rapeseed and mustard have been fixed at Rs. 4,425 per quintal this year -Rs 225 per quintal more than last year's MSP of Rs 4,200.

Agovernment statement said, "The increase in MSP for Rabi Crops for RMS 2020-21 is in line with the principle of fixing the MSPs at a level of at least 1.5 times of the all India weighted average cost of production, which was announced in the Union Budget 2018-19." The Centre has described the hike in MSPs as "a major step towards increasing the income of farmers".

'NBFC crisis could lead to $50 bn capital shortfall for banks'

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU MUMBAI, OCTOBER 23

FITCH RATINGS has said Indian banks would face a capital shortfall of about $50 billion in the event of a systemic crisis in the non-banking finance company (NBFC) sector.

According to a stress test conducted by rating agency, the credit profiles of state-run banks would come under significant pressure, and the weakest would face heightened solvency risks without capital injections from

"We also assume 30 per cent of banks' property exposure becomes non-performing, due to tight liquidity and weak sales. The property development sector is particularly reliant on NBFC financing," Fitch said. These defaults would reverse recent progress that banks have made in reducing their NPL ratios, it said.

Fitch said the banking system's gross non-performing loans (NPL) ratio would rise to 11.6 per cent by FY21 from 9.3 per cent in FY19, compared with its baseline expectation of a decline

DESPITE OPERATIONAL headwinds, Larsen and Toubro (L&T) Wednesday posted results in line with analyst expectations on all fronts for the three months ended September 30, 2019, owing to robust order inflows and continued momentum in project execution. The management said domestic capex remained weak and there was no pick-up in private capex.

CEO and managing director SN Subrahmanyan said there was a strain on payments from governments and PSUs which has affected the company's working capital. Stalled projects in Andhra Pradesh, coastal road project and the Shivaji statue also contributed to strain on working capital, even though the dues are not high there. In March, working capital was brought to 18 per cent from 26 per cent earlier. In the June quarter, it stood at 22 per cent and continues at those levels. The company said it usually gets some payment released in the second quarter, which did not happen. Despite slowing capex, L&T has kept its guidance intact on the order inflow at 10-12 per cent higher over the last year and a 12-15 per cent growth in revenue. The management said while the environment looked challenging and impacted the inflow of orders. the company was pursuing a fairly robust order book and is confident of meeting the guidance.

The company reported a 13 per cent year-on-year jump in the consolidated net profit to Rs 2,530 crore, while the revenue from operations increased 15 per cent yo-y to Rs 35,330 crore. ## Non-disclosure of complaint: Sebi, bourses seek details from Infosys

MARKETS REGULATOR Markets regulator Sebi and the stock exchanges have started looking into alleged non-disclosure of pricesensitive information by the Infosys management, in the wake of serious allegations levelled by whistleblowers. The regulator is also understood to be examining possible insider trading in the company's shares.

The Securities and Exchange Board of India (Sebi) has already asked the stock exchanges to collate trading data of Infosys' shares as well as about huge build-up derivative positions before the complaint was made public, according to officials. It has also sought details about alleged non-disclosure of key information by Infosys.

"The exchange has sought clarification from Infosys for nondisclosure of the information about the whistleblower complaint," the BSE said in a stateAccording to Infosys chairman Nandan Nilekani's statement, one board member received two anonymous complaints on September 30 ment. "Infosys vide an announcement dated October 22, 2019 submitted statement attributable to Nandan Nilekani, Chairman of Infosys, wherein it is mentioned that Infosys had received whistleblower complaints. However, it is observed that Infosys has not made any disclosures under Regulation 30 of SEBI (LODR) Regulations, 2015, with respect to receipt of whistleblower complaint mentioned in the announcement," the BSE statement said. When contacted, the Sebi spokesperson was not available for comment.

According to Infosys chairman Nandan Nilekani's statement, one board member received two anonymous complaints on September 30. One complaint was dated September 20 titled "Disturbing unethical practices" and the second undated with the title "Whistleblower Complaint."

Nilekani said these complaints were placed before the Audit Committee on October 10 and before the non-executive members of the board on October 11. "However, stock exchanges were not informed about these complaints. The company informed the stock exchange only on October 21 — almost three weeks after the board members received the complaints. When serious corporate governance lapses were brought to the notice of the board, what were independent directors doing," said an official.

Significantly, after the board meeting of October 11, the Audit Committee began consultation with the independent internal auditors(Ernst & Young) on terms of reference for their prima facie investigation. Stock exchanges were kept in the dark about these developments. "This is price-sensitive information. Such developments should be informed the stock exchanges as per regulations," said an official. On October 21, the Audit Committee retained the law firm of Shardul Amarchand Mangaldas & Co to conduct an independent investigation.

Infosys shares had plunged over 16 per cent. On Wednesday, its shares rose 1.16 per cent on the BSE. Infosys board had asked CEO Salil Parekh and CFO Nilanjan Roy to recuse themselves from internal investigations into allegations of misgovernance against them. This comes in the wake of the emergence of whistleblower allegations of cover up of costs by the top management to boost revenue numbers. Interestingly, the whistleblowers wrote to the Office of Whistleblower Protection Program, Washington, DC. They avoided approaching Sebi, which regulates the Indian markets where the firm's shares are traded.

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU NEW DELHI, OCTOBER 23

THE INCOME tax department has detected alleged tax evasion of over Rs 1,000 crore after conducting searches against a Delhibased business group that is under its scanner for hawala dealings with links to the multicrore VVIP chopper scam case, the Central Board of Direct Taxes (CBDT) said Wednesday.

The business group that was searched is engaged in various egovernance projects and financial services and has a presence in several cities of the country and also in Dubai, the CBDT said in its statement.

"The search and seizure action have led to unearthing of several incriminating evidence establishing large scale tax evasion, hawala transaction and money laundering by the said taxpayer group. The group has taken recourse to use of shell based companies Delhi/Kolkata to route unaccounted money," it said.

Preliminary enquiries revealed the quantum of accommodation entries and hawala transactions to be more than Rs 1,000 crore and the department suspects tax evasion and money laundering by the accused, it

The CBDT said it had earlier conducted search on entities related to fertiliser procurement of the group. "Investigations revealed that huge amount of commission was being collected in Dubai through shell companies of a Dubai-based operator who is also an accused in a VVIP chopper scam. A part of such commission was laundered back to India through the aforesaid Delhi based group," it said. The tax department had earlier in July also conducted searches against entities involved in the chopper scam, claiming funds were received through shell companies from Dubai-based operator Rajiv Saxena, who is an accused in the AgustaWestland VVIP chopper scam case.

Dr Reddy's recalls ranitidine products from US market

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU HYDERABAD, OCTOBER 23

DR REDDY'S Laboratories (DRL) on Wednesday said it had commenced voluntary recall of all its medications containing the active ingredient ranitidine from the US market, effective October 1. The move is in sync with sim-

"All ranitidine products with expiration dated September 2019 to June 2021 are being recalled." DRL said.

Ranitidine, which belongs to a group of drugs called histamine-2 blockers, works by reducing the amount of acid stomach produces and is used to treat and prevent ulcers in the stomach and intestines and manage several other conditions like GERD and Zollinger-Ellison syndrome. To date, DRL has not received any reports of adverse events related to its ranitidine products, the company said. The recall includes all quantities in the US that are within expiry, it added. OTC ranitidine products are mainly used to prevent heartburn associated with acid indigestion and sour stomach brought on by eating or drinking certain foods and beverages.

According to reports, on September 13, 2019, the USFDA announced that its preliminary tests found low levels of NDMA in ranitidine. ## Next fiscal growth likely to rebound to 7%: IMF

PRESSTRUST OF INDIA SINGAPORE, OCTOBER 23

THE INTERNATIONAL Monetary Fund (IMF) sees Indian economic growth rebounding to around 7 per cent in the next financial year, supported by measures like monetary policy stimulus and corporate income tax cuts.

"We see the Indian economy rebounding from our projected 6.1 per cent growth this fiscal year to something like 7 per cent in the next fiscal year (2020). We see the factors that will support growth, including monetary policy stimulus, working their way through the pipeline," Jonathan Ostry, Deputy Director, Asia Pacific Department at the IMF, told reporters.

The recent tax cuts, government's progress in addressing lingering weaknesses in the financial sector and measures to support growth sectors as seen as factors underpinning growth in the near term, Ostry said. # 21 THE RURAL TRACKING THE CHANGING INDIA IN ITS VILLAGES

BOTTOMING OUT

A recovery, finally?

Prices of most farm produce are looking up. That, together with the country's best monsoon in 25 years, holds out some hope for the economy

HARISH DAMODARAN & PARTHA SARATHI BISWAS NEW DELHI/PUNE, OCTOBER 23

LAST WEEK, the market research firm Nielsen released data that showed annual sales growth for fast-moving consumer goods (FMCG) in rural India at 5% during July-September, down from 20% in the same quarter of 2018 and 10% in April-June 2019. Moreover, for the first time in seven years, rural FMCG growth, which typically used to be 1.5 times that of urban India, fell below the latter's 8% for the latest reported quarter.

But amidst this overall dismal picture, some early signs of green shoots are visible.

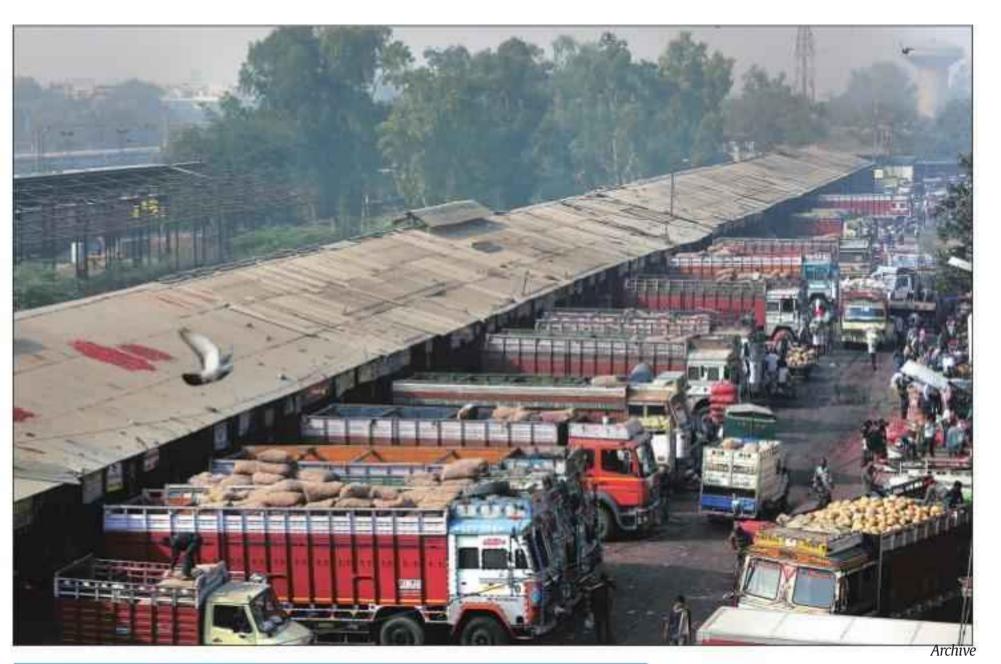

To start with, we have inflation numbers based on the consumer price index (CPI). For 36 months running, from September 2016 to August 2019, consumer food inflation trailed general CPI inflation. This extended period of low food price increases – an average of 1.38% year-on-year, unprecedented in India — has seemingly ended. For September 2019, CPI food inflation stood at 5.11%, as against 3.99% for overall consumer inflation (see chart).

The improved price sentiment for farm produce is also borne out by the rates for kharif crops that are arriving in wholesale mandis of the country. In most cases, these, even while ruling below the minimum support prices declared by the Narendra Modi government for the 2019-20 season, are more than what they were at this time last year. The turnaround, as the accompanying table reveals, is most significant in pulses and soyabean. Only for cotton are prices lower relative to last year.

However, it is not only the MSP crops. Onion in Maharashtra's Lasalgaon market is trading at an average of Rs 3,500 per quintal, compared to Rs 1,550 a year ago. Farmers in the state are also receiving Rs 28-29 for a litre of cow milk containing 3.5% fat and 8.5% solids-not-fat, which is better than the corresponding last year's levels of Rs 23-24. Prices of red chilli (the high-pungency 'Teja' variety) in Guntur's Mirchi Yard are today around Rs 16,000 per quintal, up from Rs 9,000-10,000 one year back.

One reason for prices looking up is heavy rains across central, western and southern India through September and the current month. The monsoon's late withdrawal has caused damage to the kharif crop that was at maturity stage (especially soyabean in Madhya Pradesh) and also led to delayed harvesting of urad (black gram), moong (green gram), onion and assorted vegetables. In maize, yields have been impacted by infestation of the fall armyworm insect pest, apart from drought conditions in Maharashtra and Karnataka till late-July. Many farmers in Maharashtra are reported to have diverted their maize crop for fodder well before it had reached grain forma-

Another reason for price recovery is supply pressures. These, in turn, are a result of sustained low prices in the recent past. In milk, for instance, not getting good prices over the last four years or more has led to farmers gradually reducing herd sizes or underfeeding their animals. The effects of that haps, the only heartening piece of news for the Indian economy buffeted by a consumption slowdown on top of a prolonged investment slump. Moreover, the country has recorded its best southwest monsoon since 1994. The excess rains have not only helped substantially recharge the groundwater table and aquifers, but also resulted in water levels in 120 major reservoirs being filled to 89.1% of their full capacities, as against the last 10-years' average storage of 71.6% at this time. The positive effect of this will be seen in the upcoming rabi season.

The best case scenario will be if the present price uptrend — actually, a recovery from lows — holds and, together with a bumper rabi crop, would deliver the muchneeded boost to farm incomes after April. That will, to a great deal, depend on policymakers' tolerance to price increases, even of an episodic nature.

The Modi government's first term was marked by general hawkishness, reflected in the frequent resort to export restrictions, duty-free imports and imposition of stocking restrictions on farm produce at the slightest hint of inflationary pressures. In its present term, this approach has been witnessed so far only vis-à-vis onions, where both export ban and stock limits on the trade are in place.

It remains to be seen whether the Modi government will be emboldened to look beyond temporary supply disruptions to take the next big reform step — of dismantling all controls on marketing, movement, stocking and export of agricultural produce. The timing cannot be better than now, when farm prices have bottomed out and production prospects for the rabi season seem particularly bright on the back of probably the best monsoon in quarter of a century. This is something that FMCG companies and two-wheeler makers, too, would certainly look forward to.

'Rear cows not for milk alone'

RSS body tries to push value-added products from gobar and gaumutra

LUDHIANA, OCTOBER 23

MOBILE RADIATION protectors, Lakshmi and Ganesh idols, diyas, face wash, hand wash, hair oil, glass cleaner, room spray..all produced from dung and urine of indigenous cows and on display at Himanshu Kwatra's Gavyaveda brand outlet in the Aman Park area of Ludhiana.

"These are the most popular items, selling like hot cakes ahead of Diwali," says the 40year-old, pointing to the Lakshmi-Ganesh idols that cost Rs 150-350 a pair depending on size. The best thing about them and the diyas (oil lamp), he adds, is that they can be reused as manure and "you don't have to throw after the puja (worship) is over". Most of the 40-odd items sold by him are made inhouse. That includes the cow dung chips priced at Rs 100-150, which, when pasted on mobile covers, can "absorb harmful radiation from cell phones".

Kwatra's is one among four Gau Samvardhan units in Punjab — the others at Nurmahal, Abohar and Fazilka — that are seeking to market products from dung and urine, which would make it viable for farmers to rear cattle not simply for milk. Kwatra started his facility about three years back after visiting the Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh's (RSS) Gau Samvardhan unit at Nagpur in Maharashtra that is India's largest. There are currently about 34 of them across the country.

"My outlet registered a profit of Rs 2 lakh on a turnover of Rs 25 lakh in the first year. This financial year, I expect sales of Rs 40 lakh and earning at Rs 5-6 lakh," claims Kwatra, who procures 500-600 kg of wet dung and 200-250 litres of urine every month. While the idols are made from semi-dried dung, the other products mainly use gaumutra (cow urine) and gobar ark (liquid concentrate extract from dung). "For ark, fresh dung is required. You can extract about 3 litres of ark from 12 kg of wet dung. The ark goes for making oil, face wash, soap, etc, while the dung that remains can be dried and sold as manure fetching Rs 50-60 per 5-kg bag," he explains.

Besides using dung and urine as product ingredients, Kwatra is also selling gaumutra directly packed in 200-ml bottles at Rs 80 each, "pure" ghee at Rs 1,200 per kg and "A2" milk from desi (indigenous) cows at Rs 75 per litre. His unit engages around 40 people for making the various products, in addition to packing and sticking the Gavyaveda labels. Chandrakant, who heads the RSS' Gau Samvardhan mission in Punjab, wants cow rearing to be made economical even after the animals have stopped producing milk. "Every cow gives 20 kg of gobar and 12-15 litres of gaumutra daily, which can be converted into revenue sources. Once that takes place, farmers will not view non-milking cows as a burden. Right now, they don't consider it worth spending Rs 90-100 every day just on feeding and maintaining them," he admits.

There is a catch, though, to the solution proposed by the men behind the Gau Samvardhan mission. It is limited only to the produce from indigenous breeds. "We want to revive rearing of Sahiwal, Gir, Rathi and other desi cattle. Farmers should be discouraged from keeping Holstein Friesian and the government must not allow even import of semen from these animals," states Chandrakant.

Kwatra, too, does not take the dung and urine from cows in dairies close to his home "as they don't have any desi cattle". His supply comes from the gaushala (cow shelter) of a Shani Dev temple, some 5 km from his home. Naveen Gupta and Sunil Aggarwal, hosiery industrialists from Ludhiana, who have started rearing 3-4 desi cows each inspired by the Gau Samvardhan campaign, are also providing dung and urine to Kwatra's unit.

However, as per the 2012 Livestock Census (the full results from the latest 2018 Census are still not out), Punjab had a total of 24.28 lakh cattle and 51.60 lakh buffaloes. Within the 24.28 lakh cattle population 20.65 lakh comprised exotic or crossbred animals. Only the balance 3.63 lakh were of indigenous/non-descript stock. Most of the state's stray cattle — estimated at roughly 1.25 lakh — are also exotic/crossbred males or unproductive females.

The ultimate test of the Gau Samvardhan model would be if it can lead to farmers maintaining cows well after they have ceased giving milk - and also to their replacing Holstein crossbreds with desi breeds. That is still a long way off.

AGRICULTURE AND NUTRITION

The way forward in milk fortification

FSSAI and NDDB should not dismiss valid concerns over addition of micronutrients in food even if the idea is well-intentioned

TARUN SHRIDHAR. SHARAD GUPTA

THE DEBATE on food security in India, till not very long ago, revolved around making available adequate quantities of produce to feed our vast population. However, of late, the emphasis has started shifting from quantity to quality, signaling a paradigm shift in the understanding, if not definition, of "food security". And there's no better candidate to take the discussion forward than milk.

The quantity question in milk has since long been addressed. It is the country's largest "crop" today, both by volume and value. India is, moreover, the global leader in milk production by miles, with its daily per capita availability, at 375 grams, also above the world average. Qualitatively, too, it is a wholesome food containing animal protein, fat, carbohydrate, calories and sugar as well as calcium, phosphorus and vitamin A, D, B2 and B12. But it does not end there. Being a universally consumed food - in India, vegetarianism does not extend to veganism — milk also offers itself as a natural vehicle for a nationwide food fortification programme that can effectively address the problem of under-nutrition amongst large sections of our masses. The potential is even more given the high income elasticity of demand for milk in the lower quintiles and deciles: Since their consumption of it would grow relatively faster than others' with increased incomes, why not pack added nutrition into an already-nutritious food? It is in this context that the current controversy over milk fortification, involving the Food Safety and Standards Authority of India (FSSAI) and the Gujarat Cooperative Milk Marketing Federation (GCMMF, better known as Amul), assumes significance. The national food safety regulator, in October 2016, brought into effect standards for fortification of milk with vitamin A and D, using premix supplements such as retinyl acetate or palmitate (for the former) and cholecalciferol or ergocalciferol (for the

It is well known that micronutrient deficiency is a silent epidemic, contributing to high levels of stunting (low height for age), wasting (low weight for height) and underweight (low weight for height) among children. The Food Sustainability Index, developed by The Economist Intelligence Unit with the Italy-based Barilla Centre for Food & Nutrition, has ranked India 63rd among 67 countries in terms of micronutrient deficiency prevalence, with only Mozambique, Sierra Leone, Ghana and Kenya faring worse. A recent World Bank study has pointed out that more than 70% of Indian children under five are deficient in vitamin D (essential for calcium absorption and strong bones) and 57% lack adequate levels of vitamin A (necessary for vision and body immunity).

Now, it's true that milk already contains vitamin A and D. So, why fortify at all? The answer to it is that both these are fat-soluble vitamins. When dairies remove fat in order to produce toned or double-toned milk — which is what most poorer households consume – it leads to their depletion. Fortification will, hence, help top up the lost micronutrients. Moreover, since the premixes used in fortification are water-soluble forms of vitamin A and D, they will remain in the milk even after the fat layer is removed after boiling. Fortification also does not change the colour, appearance or taste of milk, while costing hardly 3-4 paisa per litre.

In September 2017, the National Dairy Development Board (NDDB), in collaboration with the World Bank and Tata Trusts, launched a Milk Fortification Project targeting fortification of about 2 million tonnes of liquid milk to reach at least 30 million consumers. Currently, some 30 dairies, both cooperatives and private, are fortifying roughly 55 lakh litres per day (LLPD) of milk with vitamin A and D. The fortification is being carried out as per the standards set by FSSAI. Till now, over one million tonnes of milk fortification has already been achieved.

However, the idea of fortification hasn't found favour with India's largest and most reputed dairy brand: Amul. The Rs 33,150 croreturnover cooperative, which procures an average of 230 LLPD from 36 lakh producer-members, has said that it only supports "natural fortification" to address micronutrient deficiency. This is as opposed "synthetic or artificial fortification". A chemically fortified product, according to it, could have toxic effects on the body, especially if the premix isn't properly stored or used in excess.

There is merit in some of these concerns. Random fortification may not only create nutrient imbalances, but even result in deceptive or misleading claims by manufacturers. Critics of fortification also raise issues relating to costs: While only 3-4 paise per litre, the amounts may not be small when multiplied by the sheer volumes sold each day. Not for nothing that questions get asked whether there are business interests lurking behind the curtain of the campaign for food fortification, starting with milk. Also, where does this leave the primary producer? He/she is, after all, getting nothing out of the higher price that the consumer is now paying for food with supposedly enhanced nutritional value.

While fortification might be a well-intentioned programme, the country's largest producers' cooperative and milk marketer staying out does little to help the cause. Organised dairies, as it is, handle barely a quarter of India's total milk production and, even within that, more than a quarter is procured and marketed by Amul. That being the case, the programme's effectiveness becomes questionable. FSSAI's statements that food fortification is "voluntary" and akin to a "three-legged race", wherein it would be scaled up in stages before becoming mandatory, isn't helpful either.

It would be better that FSSAI and NDDB get all stakeholders on board in order to make the fortification programme a success. Amul's position in favour of "natural fortification" deserves serious consideration. The dairy giant should, at the least, be encouraged to spell out its suggestions in tangible terms. Otherwise, the programme is the danger of falling by the wayside and confirming George Bernard Shaw's observation that "hell is paved with good intentions, not with bad ones."

'I will do it the way I know'

On first day as BCCI Prez, Ganguly — India's first cricketer-chief in 65 years — puts emphasis on credibility and corruption-free board

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE MUMBAI, OCTOBER 23

SOURAV GANGULY signalled the beginning of a new era in Indian cricket after the almost three-year tenure of the Supreme Court-appointed Committee of Administrators with the following words: "I don't enjoy the word 'control' (in the full form of BCCI). It's about proper functioning of the BCCI. We have to be in the thick of things because, at the end of the day, the responsibility has been put on us to get things going in the right direction."

One of India's most celebrated captains taking over as the head of the richest cricketing body in the world may pave the way for a different way of doing things in the BCCI, even though his tenure will last only nine months.

"I'll do it the way I know," Ganguly said after the Annual General Meeting in Mumbai, where he formally took over. "No compromise, on the basis of credibility, corruption-free and same for all. This is a new start for the BCCI, fortunately or unfortunately, similar to the situation when I took over as India captain," he reflected on the parallels to the period just after the match-fixing scandal of 2000.

"Things need to be brought back in place, reforms need to be done, huge amounts of money needs to be paid to state associations."

Clad in an India blazer from his playing days, Ganguly admitted that he and his team of relatively young office-bearers are stepping into the dark to a certain extent after the 33 months during which Vinod Rai and his CoA co-members ruled the show.

"The accounts for the past three years have not been passed. That has to be done at an AGM. This was a general body meeting. We'll call an AGM in three weeks' time and pass it. There was no AGM for the past three years, no Working Committee meetings and other such gatherings. We have been briefed a bit about various matters, but we will have to see for ourselves."

The new BCCI president made it clear that the focus of his regime will be cricket and cricketers, including those plying their trade at the first-class level. "In the last three years, the number of domestic games has increased to almost 2,000. A lot of new teams have come in. We have to look at firstclass cricket, both in structural and financial terms. That will be the first thing we'll do and we'll get it done before the actual Ranji Trophy season starts. We have to keep the Ranji Trophy as competitive as possible, because from there come the likes of Virat Kohli, MS Dhoni, Ajinkya Rahane and Rohit Sharma," the former Cricket Association of Bengal president said.

'Kohli, the most important man'

Ganguly unhesitatingly described Kohli as the "most important man" in Indian cricket and said the job of the BCCI was to "support him" and help him make Team India the best in the world.

"It's a fantastic side, yes, you can say they haven't won the World Cup but you don't win World Cups every time."

Referring to suggestions that the team management — Kohli, head coach Ravi Shastri and other coaching staff — had been calling the shots and getting their way on most issues during the CoA's tenure, the new BCCI president said "our job is to make their life easier. I have been a captain myself and understand from that position and we will deal with it. We'll work together on the basis of performance. There will be opinions shared and discussions on issues. We're here to accommodate. Everybody will be respected."

As far as Dhoni's cricketing future is concerned, the new BCCI chief, who played under the wicketkeeper towards the end of his career, said he will have a discussion with the player in question, and drew parallels with a particular stage of his own career.

"It depends on him (Dhoni). Even when I was left out and when the entire world said he will never make it, I believed in myself and came back and played for four years.

Boss of crikcet in India

Sourav Ganguly took charge as the Board of Control for Cricket in India president in Mumbai on Wednesday. Ganesh Shirshekar

Champions don't finish quickly. I don't know what is in his mind, what he thinks about his career. We will leave at that. He is one of the greats of the game. Over a period of time, his achievements, when you sit down and take note, you say wow. So, when I am around, everybody will be respected," Ganguly added.

Working with the ICC

There has been a school of thought that under the CoA, India lost its dominance in the ICC on matters cricketing and financial. Ganguly said one of his jobs will be to get what is rightfully India's share. "We're to get $372million over the next five years from the ICC. A lot of it is back-loaded because India will be hosting two major ICC events — the 2021 World T20 and the 2023 World Cup. We'll make sure we get our due."

Some of the major state cricket associations of the country, such as Tamil Nadu and Haryana, were ineligible for the BCCI AGM as their revised constitutions were deemed non-compliant by the CoA. Ganguly said the door can't be shut on them.

Conflict-of-interest issue

Conflict of interest has been a major bone of contention for cricketers, both present and former. Ganguly himself fell foul of the norm as he was wearing multiple hats at one time.

Members of the original Cricket Advisory Committee (CAC) — comprising Ganguly, Sachin Tendulkar and VVS Laxman — found themselves on its wrong side. The next one - consisting of Kapil Dev, Anshuman Gaekwad and Shantha Rangaswamy — had to step down because of similar charges. "A new CAC will have to be appointed and we'll have to see that its members have no conflict," is all Ganguly offered in this regard.

Board's old guard makes its presence felt

DEVENDRA PANDEY MUMBAI, OCTOBER 23

ON THE day the new dispensation took charge of Indian cricket, the old guard didn't actually go missing. N Srinivasan, during whose tenure events took place that culminated in the Committee of Administrators (CoA) being appointed to run board affairs, was there at the Cricket Centre, even though he and the Tamil Nadu Cricket Association were barred from Wednesday's general body meeting and election.

Srinivasan even met CoA head Vinod Rai and member Diana Edulji. Other old hands such as Niranjan Shah and Rajeev Shukla were also present. Though, none of them took part in the official proceedings.

The Lodha Committee recommendations had disqualified most of the old guard, they registered their presence at the BCCI headquarters. Later, on the day the CoA demited office, the former bigwigs joined BCCI president Ganguly for the informal meeting.

Outgoing office-bearers CK Khanna, Amitabh Choudhary and Anirudh Chaudhary also joined the meeting. Aditya Verma, who had filed a petition in Supreme Court that resulted in the formation of the CoA, walked into the BCCI office with Srinivasan.

Sources say, the informal meet was called by Ganguly to 'thank' the state units who had supported him in becoming chief of the richest cricket board in the world. The former India captain pointed out how past three years were an emergency situation and the BCCI now looks to be back on track. The meeting was also attended by the new faces of state associations, who were nominated to attend the general body meeting.

Former BCCI chief N Srinivasan, former board secretary Niranjan Shah and former IPL chairman Rajiv Shukla with the current BCCI president Sourav Ganguly, treasurer Arun Dumal and secretary Jay Shah.

Not only Ganguly, former president

Srinivasan also spoke on the occasion. Three veteran administrators from the old guard also wanted to join Ganguly in a press conference but were prevented from doing so by one of the new office-bearers, The Indian Express has learnt.

ing Rs 100 crore to compliant associations. These state bodies will be receiving their dues in two installments. They had been demanding release of funds from the Supreme Court-appointed CoA, but many had not received it.

Later in the afternoon, Ganguly was asked if the Apex Council has replaced the old working committee and have the powers of the secretary and joint secretary been curtailed?

"No, it's not correct, the Apex Council can give any powers to the office-bearers. It's not the right interpretation of the (Supreme Court) order. If you look at the Apex Council powers, it will designate powers to the president, secretary and treasurer and it can give them any power. All the office-bearers are very important for the functioning of BCCI."

Ganguly will be meeting India team coach Ravi Shastri, captain Virat Kohli and chairman of selection committee MSK Prasad on Thursday when the squads for the Bangladesh series will be finalised.

India tour on as B'desh players end strike

ENS/AGENCIES NEW DELHI, OCTOBER 23

THE BANGLADESH cricketers, who were on strike since Monday, called it off after a meeting with top Bangladesh Cricket Board (BCB) officials on Wednesday evening, Espncricinfo reported. All-rounder Shakib Al Hasan said there was some progress with regard to the demands put forward by the players. "Today's talks were good," Shakib said. "But we will be happy and satisfied when everything will be implemented. We call off the strike, and return to playing NCL and national camp from Friday," Espncricinfo quoted Shakib as saying.

Calling off the strike means the team's tour of India, which begins in November, is on schedule. During the tour starting November 3, Bangladesh are scheduled to play three T20 Internationals and two Test matches as part of the World Championship.

One of the major points raised by the players was better remuneration for those competing at the first-class level and also an increase in pay for the national team players. The players had also demanded a return to a franchise-based model in the Bangladesh Premier League (BPL) and the resignation of the present committee of the country's Cricketers Welfare Association.

'But we will be happy and satisfied when everything will be implemented. We call off the strike, and return to playing NCL and national camp from Friday.'

The players also demanded settlement of dues from the BPL and removal of the restriction on cricketers playing in more than two franchise leagues.

Earlier in the day, Sourav Ganguly, who took over as BCCI president on Wednesday, was confident that the tour would go ahead as per schedule. "I hope so because two days before, I spoke to the honourable Prime Minister of Bangladesh and she has agreed to come and visit for the Test match when India play Bangladesh on November 22," Ganguly told reporters. "I'm sure when the Prime Minister has given consent, I don't see the national team not turning up. But at the end of the day it's their decision, it's their internal matter where we do not have any say or we should not have any say."

Indian squad to be named today

PTI adds from Mumbai: Virat Kohli's workload could be a topic of discussion while Kerala stumper Sanju Samson could be drafted in as Rishabh Pant's cover when the selection committee sits down in Mumbai on Thursday to pick the squad for the upcoming T20I series against Bangladesh on Thursday. Kohli has featured in 48 out of the 56 games India have played across formats since October 2018. However, the selection committee will leave it on Kohli to decide whether he needs a break or continue playing. Hard-hitting Mumbai all-rounder Shivam Dubey's name is likely to come up for discussions as a potential replacement for the injured Hardik Pandya, primarily based on his big-hitting prowess.

Both Samson and Dubey turned in eve catching performances in the Vijay Hazare Trophy, with the former even hitting a double hundred.

"There is no harm if both Rishabh and Sanju are there in the team. They have played together in IPL also. Rishabh has had limited success in shorter formats but he is a longterm investment and we need to persist with him," a BCCI official close to the selection committee told PTI. "At the same time, Sanju is a player with game-changing abilities. Keeping World T20 in mind, the team management needs to check other options also as everyone knows that it's time to look beyond Mahendra Singh Dhoni."

ECB chief hard-sells The Hundred: 'It's about protecting Test match cricket'

AGENCIES LONDON, OCTOBER 23

ENGLAND CRICKET chief Tom Harrison says the controversial Hundred competition will help protect other formats of the game despite fears over its potential impact. The Hundred, starting in 2020, is a new tournament consisting of eight city-based franchise sides, breaking away from the traditional county system. Teams will bat for 100 balls each with overs, normally consisting of six deliveries, lasting for 10 balls with bowlers either bowling five or 10 balls consecutively.

The players' draft was held at the weekend but opposition to the tournament remains. #StopThe100 trended on Twitter while the draft was taking place and several people were asked to remove "Oppose the 100"T-shirts during an evidence session held by British lawmakers involving England and Wales Cricket Board chairman Harrison and other officials.

"The 100 is a really good way of protecting everything that we are serious about," Harrison said on Wednesday. "It's about protecting Test match cricket, it's about protecting four-day Championship cricket, it's about getting kids playing more cricket at school. This is engaging at a different level with a completely new community in this country and that is something we should embrace and celebrate."

Harrison said the new tournament would try and recreate the atmosphere of the World Cup, which England won for the first time in July. He added: "The Hundred is an attempt to replicate that and bring it back to our country every year without taking anything away from our precious county environment, to ensure we grow the game of cricket in this country. That is our job. We have seen throughout the Cricket World Cup grounds across the country packed to the rafters, 40 per cent of whom were first-time buyers to cricket in this country. The vibrancy, the colours, the noise and energy is something that will live with all of us."

Root refuses to be 'eaten up' by younger T20 talents

Red-ball cricket remains Joe Root's priority but England's Test captain is not just going to let upcoming talents shove him out of the Twenty20 squad, the 28-year-old has said. Root is not a muscular power-hitter and many wonder if he is cut out for the game's shortest format even though he has a decent average of 35.72 with a 126-plus strike rate in the 32 Twenty20 internationals he has played. England have rested Root, their top scorer in the final of the 2016 World T20, for next month's five-match Twenty20 series in New Zealand, while naming the uncapped strokemaker Tom Banton. "For me to get into the T20 side, it will mean that I have to keep getting better," Root told British media. "If someone like Tom Banton comes in and sets the world alight I've got to try to force him out in the limited opportunities I get to play. If that happens, it raises the standard of English cricket in that format. That's the food chain that cricket is sometimes. You have to be at the top of it otherwise you get swept away and eaten up."

Under him, England will also play two Tests in New Zealand later in November and Root said playing all three formats would make him a better batsman. "As long as the other formats aren't a distraction or taking away from what I can give to the Test team, I'll always look to improve my game and put myself in as many situations and scenarios which I think will long-term help me as a player."

'Life is hard' paralympian resorts to euthanasia

ASSOCIATED PRESS BRUSSELS. OCTOBER 23

PARALYMPIAN MARIEKE Vervoort said when the day arrived, she had signed the euthanasia papers and was prepared to end her life. That day came Tuesday in her native Belgium, her death confirmed in a statement from the city of Diest. Vervoort, who was 40, won gold and silver medals in wheelchair racing at the 2012 London Paralympics, and two more medals three years ago in Rio de Janeiro.

In an interview attended by The Associated Press at the Paralympics in Rio, Vervoort described living with unbroken pain from an incurable, degenerative spinal disease. She talked of sleeping only 10 minutes some nights, described severe pain that caused others to pass out just watching her, and detailed how sports kept her alive.

"It's too hard for my body," Vervoort said in the 2016 interview. "Each training I'm suffering because of pain. Every race I train hard. Training and riding and doing competition are medicine for me. I push so hard to push literally all my fear and everything away."

Vervoort spent her last evening with close friends and family, even sharing a glass of sparkling wine, which she referred to as a painkiller. Condolences streamed in from across the nation, including from the royal family. "Marieke 'Wielemie' Vervoort was an athlete tough as nails and a great lady. Her death touches us deeply," the family said in a statement.

Vervoort was a strong advocate of the right to choose euthanasia, which is legal in Belgium. Like training hard, she said it gave her control and put "my own life in my hands. "I'm really scared, but those (euthanasia) papers give me a lot of peace of mind because I know when it's enough for me, I have those papers," she said.

"If I didn't have those papers, I think I'd have done suicide already. I think there will be fewer suicides when every country has the law of euthanasia. ... I hope everybody sees that this is not murder, but it makes people live longer."

Vervoort also had epileptic seizures and had one in 2014 when she was cooking pasta and spilled boiling water over her legs. That resulted in a four-month hospital stay. A loyal Labrador named Zenn began staying with her, pawing her when a seizure was about to occur. Zenn also pulled her socks out of the sock drawer, she said.

If I didn't have those papers, I think I'd have done suicide already. I think there will be fewer suicides when every country has the law of euthanasia. ... I hope everybody sees that this is not murder, but it makes people live longer."

Wushu gets a poster boy

Praveen, who gave up boxing alleging favouritism, wins gold at World Championships

SHIVANI NAIK MUMBAI. OCTOBER 23

ROHTAK IN Haryana was always known for its boxing and its municipality Kalanaur for its rasgulla; 22-year-old resident Praveen Kumar loved them both as a teenager. Then the quiet son of a peon, who worked shuffling around tiringly for a vigilance office of the Harvana State Electricity Board, felt severely let down by both.

Favouritism in boxing left him bitter and the rasgulla became far too sweet for his maniacal weight control needed for sport. So in 2013, the then-15-year-old shifted to another combat sport, Wushu, channelling his anger with the boxing selection system into India's fastest growing martial art. On Wednesday, Praveen was crowned India's first Wushu male World Champion in the 48 kg at Shanghai.

"Today my opponent Russel Diaz was sending flying kicks like a windmill. Par maine andar ghuske punch maarkar usko haraaya. Boxing ki poori bhadaas nikaal di, (But I punched him hard. I took out all the frustration I had because of boxing)" says the man who dreamt of nothing but boxing after seeing Akhil Kumar box at Beijing in 2008.

Praveen who won 2-1, countered Filipino Diaz with uppercuts from the inside unleashing a flurry in the last round, and fulfilled his dream of punching to world glory, albeit in a different sport.

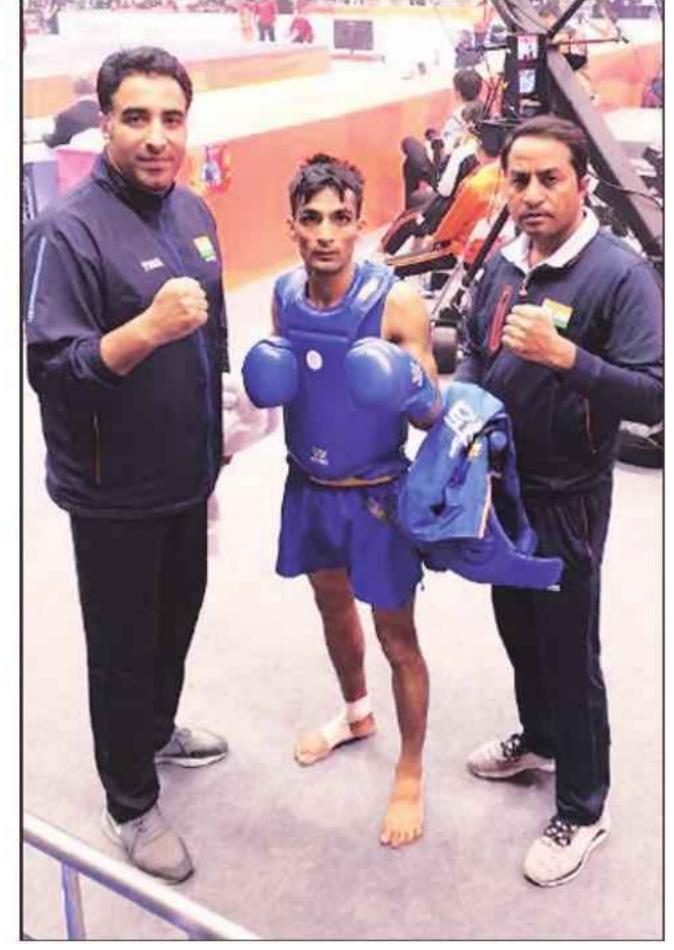

The sport-obsessed lad had first watched Wushu in passing on television during a National Games repeat telecast, and was immediately smitten. "Boxing mein dhoka khaaya, (Boxing let him down)" says his father Harish Kumar. Feeling betrayed by nepotism of a local coach, Praveen would join a small Wushu centre under coach Pramod Katariya with two jaded mats discarded by wrestlers, at Bahu Wushu, essentially Chinese kung fu, incorporates punches, kicks, jumps, sweeps and throws, and has seen a phenomenal rise in the north and north east of India especially in J&K and Haryana. When he was sidelined by the boxing coach, he would tell his father he needed an outlet and Wushu was a good combination of fitness and self defense.

India's first men's medal, however, came in the sanda (wushu's full contact format), which combines elements of kickboxing, boxing and wrestling.

"He was always good at sports - kho kho, cricket and wrestling too besides boxing. He even went to Kanyakumari as a school boy representing Haryana in Manipuri fight sport thang ta," says his brother Pawan, who would end up a very reluctant sparring partner.

"I am 70 kg and he is 48 kg. And he would charge towards me and challenge me to thrown him down. He is tactically so good and his presence of mind is excellent. I've not even managed to push him one step behind till today," he laughs.

Praveen who won the trials for the World Championships earlier this year, is also known in Wushu circles for his obsessive training. "There's an Indira Gandhi Park nearby where he gathers young wrestlers and spars with them for hours. He'll run 15-20 km on the road or a bypass, after returning from a camp, when I'd expect him to be exhausted from travel. And though he still swears by kachcha doodh (fresh milk), he can scarily go for days on just water while keeping his strength when he needs to get his weight down from a normal 53 kg to 48 kg," says Pawan, with much

Heartbreaks aside

Befitting martial arts fairytales, Praveen had a heartbreaking loss in the 2016 finals of the Asian Championship that changed him overnight - he turned to manic training. "He would talk in his sleep about why he'd lost and didn't eat for 2-3 days. He

In the Tamil Nadu-Gujarat encounter, the Dinesh Karthik led side chased down the rival's 177 for 9 in a game reduced to 40 overs due to a late start owing to overnight rain and a wet out-

Gujarat couldn't recover from the early loss of their batting mainstays-Parthiv Patel and Priyank Panchal and could only make 177 for 9 in 40 overs India off-spinner Ravichandran Ashwin, who joined the Tamil Nadu team after being part of the squad that whitewashed South Africa in the 3-test series, struck the first blow, dismissing Panchal for 3. shared a century partnership with fellow opener Devdutt Padikkal (92) to power Karnataka to a nine wicket over Chhattisgarh and into the final of the Vijay Hazare Trophy here on Wednesday, where it will face Tamil Nadu, which beat Gujarat by five wickets in the other semifinal. Chasing 224 for victory, the host romped home in 40 overs as Rahul and Padikkal and then Mayank Agarwal (47, 33 balls, 3 fours, 4 sixes) toyed with the Chhattisgarh attack.

KLRAHUL hit 88 (111 balls, 6 fours, 1 six) and

Koushik (4/46) did all the damage, removing the openers-liwaniot Singh (6) and Shashank

Singh for a duck. Later, he got Ashutosh Singh (20), who was playing well to nick one to 'keeper Rahul as Karnataka reduced the opponent to 35 for 3 in the 11th over. Skipper Harpreet Singh Bhatia, who has been one of the mainstays of the Chhattisgarh batting in the tournament, which included an upset win over Mumbai in the league, was involved in a 40-run stand with Amandeep Khare (78, 102 balls,4 fours).

Khare held fort for Chhattisgarh even as the Karnataka bowlers kept plugging away and picked up wickets at regular intervals. He was the eighth wicket to fall, caught by captain Manish Pandey off Abhimanyu Mithun's bowling. Sumit Sureshrao Raikar (40, 37 balls, 1 four, 2 sixes) helped Chhattisgarh's cause with some late hitting before the innings ended in the final over at 223. ## Iran banned for pressuring fighter

Iran has been banned indefinitely from international judo competition until it can give strong guarantees that its athletes will be allowed to face Israelis, the International Judo Federation (IJF) has said. The IJF decision follows a protective suspension imposed on the Iran Judo Federation last month for putting pressure on one of its fighters to withdraw from the world championships to avoid facing an Israeli opponent. Iran has 21 days to appeal to the Court of Arbitration for Sport. Saeid Mollaei was pressured by Iranian authorities to drop out of his quarter-final and semi-final bouts at the Aug. 25-Sept. 1 worlds in Tokyo to avoid a potential final against Israel's Sagi Muki, the IJF said.

Host Tamil Nadu finished with two titles as Darshil Parasrampuria and Arihant KS won in the boys under-11 and under-13 sections respectively.

Nayar retires from all forms of cricket

Veteran Mumbai all-rounder Abhishek Nayar has retired from all forms of cricket."I'm absolutely satisfied... there are so many cricketers out there who would want to be in the position I am today. I can only be grateful and thankful to have had the opportunity to play for this long... absolutely no regrets...I'm a happy man," Nayar said Nayar represented India in only three ODIs but his record as a first-class player is more promising. Known as the Mumbai team's crisis man for his penchant to bail the side out of difficult situations, the 36year-old has played 103 first-class games, the bulk of them for Mumbai, and scored 5749 runs while taking 173 wickets. Nayar, during his illustrious career, won many games for domestic heavyweights Mumbai during a career spanning a decade and a half.

Another Indian male shuttler Sameer Verma to suffered the same fate as he lost 22-20 18-21 18-21 to Japan's Kenta Nishimoto in the first round. Shubhanker Dey now remains the lone Indian in the men's singles contest, having progressed to the second round where he will be up against Shesar Hiren Rhustavito of Indonesia. India's challenge, however, came to an end in the opening round of the mixed doubles event with the ouster of the pairs of Satwiksairaj Rankireddy and Ashwini Ponnappa and Pranaav Jerry Chopra and N Sikki Reddy. Rankireddy and Ponappa lost 17-21 18-21 against fourth seed Seo Seung Jae and Chae Yujung of Korea.

Dybala saves the day

Argentine's twin strikes in the second half rescue Juventus against Lokomotiv Moscow

AGENCE FRANCE PRESSE TURIN. OCTOBER 23

MAURIZIO SARRI praised Juventus for not losing their heads as Paulo Dybala's quickfire second-half double rescued a comefrom-behind 2-1 win over Lokomotiv Moscow in their Champions League Group D clash in Turin on Tuesday. The Italian champions had trailed the Russians with 13 minutes to go in the Allianz Stadium after Aleksei Miranchuk had put the visitors ahead after half an hour. But Dybala pulled the hosts level on 77 minutes and added a second two minutes later to keep Juventus on course in Group D with seven points after three games.

Sarri's side had drawn with Atletico Madrid and beaten Bayer Leverkusen 3-0 in the last two games. Atletico also have seven points, after beating Leverkusen 1-0 in Spain on Tuesday, with Lokomotiv third with three points. "It became a difficult match when we conceded this goal," said former Chelsea boss Sarri. "But we did well not to lose our heads. We knew we could get back into the match.

"We had 25 shots on goal, we established a record for possession, so we played well. It wasn't an exceptional day, we play every three days, so a less brilliant day." Cristiano Ronaldo missed the chance for another record of scoring against a 34th different Champions League club. The Portuguese star drew a blank in Turin, firing over from a Juan Cuadrado cross early as, despite dominating possession, Juventus struggled to break down the Russians.

Lokomotiv broke through with their first clear chance. Miranchuk shrugged off Leonardo Bonucci and the Juventus defence to find on-loan Inter Milan midfielder Joao Mario whose effort was cleared by Polish keeper Wojciech Szczesny into the path of the Russian forward who finished. "It was a tough game," said Miranchuk. "We got tired closer to the end and lost focus. Juve are a dangerous team and punished us for that." Dybala looked as if he had scored the equaliser before the break but play had stopped following Ronaldo's tackle on Lokomotiv goalkeeper Guilherme. Dybala fired over just after the break with fellow Argentine forward Gonzalo Higuain coming on in place of Sami Khedira. Szczesny cleared a Joao Mario effort after an hour while at the other end Higuain missed two quick-fire chances before Dybala finally rifled in the equaliser.

Dybala curled in an exquisite goal in the 77th minute and followed it up in the 79th..

OTHER RESULTS:

Alex Sandro was denied two minutes later but Dybala was on hand to follow up to keep Juventus unbeaten in all competitions this season. "I'm very happy, I really needed two goals like this," said Dybala. "It was a difficult game but tonight you could really see the level of experience of our team. We always remained calm until we finally scored."

The Argentine was substituted after his double to an ovation from the home crowd. It had been a difficult start to the season for the 25-year-old who had looked set for a move away from Turin to either Tottenham or Manchester United after Higuain's return from Chelsea. "Now we won and you all say that we can play together. But if we were losing, the opinions would have been completely different," he added of the partnership with Ronaldo and Higuain.

"It was a painful victory, then a great goal from Dybala made the difference," said

Szczesny. Lokomotiv coach Yuri Semin said "it was a logical" defeat. "We didn't have enough strength in the end. I didn't make substitutions in the hope that we would survive the final push from Juve, but we didn't." Morata makes his point by scoring winner for Atletico Alvaro Morata came off the bench and rescued Atletico Madrid when his late header gave Diego Simeone's side a gritty 1-0 win over Bayer Leverkusen in the Champions League on Tuesday. Morata, dropped after missing chances in Atletico's draw with Valencia in La Liga on Saturday, played as if he had a point to prove in a match-winning cameo at the Wanda Metropolitano.

"He started on the bench," said Simeone. "But came on with the motivation of a little boy." Victory leaves Atletico with seven points from their opening three games in Group D and on the brink of qualification, with only top spot seemingly to be settled, most likely with Juventus.

For Leverkusen, three defeats from three all but ends their hopes of progress and continues a disappointing start to the season that also has them sitting ninth in the Bundesliga. Atletico have been on a poor run themselves, managing only two wins from their last eight games in all competitions and slipping to fifth in the league, behind both Barcelona and Real Madrid.

फसल अवशेष न जलाने के लिए हरियाणा के किसानों से अपील

फसल अवशेष जलाने से हानि

- बचे हुए भूसे एवं दानों की हानि।
- सूक्ष्म पोषक तत्व नष्ट होने से जमीन की उपजाऊ शक्ति कम हो जाती है।
- नाइट्रोजन की कमी होने से उत्पादन घटता है।
- आसपास के खेतों में आग लगने का खतरा बढ़ जाता है।
- वायु प्रदूषण बढ़ने से लोगों में बीमारियों का खतरा पैदा होता है।

समाधान

फसलों के अवशेष का स्ट्रा बेलर, रीपर बाइंडर एवं स्ट्रा रीपर द्वारा समुचित उपयोग किया जा सकता है। इस प्रकार मल्चर / एम.बी. प्लो एवं रोटावेटर के प्रयोग से फसलों के अवशेष को मिट्टी में मिला कर कम्पोस्ट के रूप में प्रयोग किया जा सकता है।

अवशेष न जलाने के लाभ

- खेत में फानों को मिलाने से नाइट्रोजन की मात्रा बढ़ती है एवं कम खाद की ज़रुरत होती है।
- वायु प्रदूषण कम होने से वातावरण शुद्ध रहता है।
- मशीनों के प्रयोग से समय अनुसार बहाई का होना।
- स्ट्रा बेलर द्वारा बनाए गए गद्दे बायोमास पाँवर जनरेशन प्लांट को बेचकर आमदनी में वृद्धि ।

फसल के बचे हुए फाने / अवशेष / ठूंठ को खेत में नहीं जलाना है। प्रदूषण को मिटाना है।

JUST FOR LAUGHS

The staircase at 167th Street in New York City, featured in the new Joker film, has turned into a popular tourist attraction. In the film, actor Joaquin Phoenix can be seen dancing down the stairs when he transforms into the joker.

Closer Home

BRAZILIAN ACTOR Wagner Moura (pictured), who essays the role of Colombian druglord Pablo Escobar in the Netflix series Narcos, will visit India in November to be a part of the International Film Festival of India (IFFI). He will showcase his directorial debut Marighella, a chronicle about Brazilian guerrilla fighter Carlos Marighella, in the Debut Competition category, and also be a part of a session named 'The Magnificent Artist' to talk about his journey as an actor and director.

Two to Tango

POPULAR BOLLYWOOD music composer and singer Bappi Lahiri (pictured) has announced his latest collaboration with pop star and fashion icon Lady Gaga. The musician, who has rendered hits like Jimmy jimmy and I am a disco dancer, has said that he is currently working with the American singer on two singles that will be unveiled later this year, with Gaga singing in English and Lahiri in Hindi. The singer, with a career spanning 50 years in the Hindi film industry and presently in Los Angeles for the recording of the tracks, has recently finished working with Akon on a musical venture.

Her Story

AS INDIA marks the 150th birth anniversary of Mahatma Gandhi, a new play by Hyderabad's Qadir Ali Baig Theatre Foundation called Kasturba explores the role of one of the most important women in his life. The play is set in the Aga Khan Palace in Pune, where Ba, as Kasturba was referred to, and Bapu were confined by the British and where she passed away. Even as the play dug into the emotions of the critical years of the freedom struggle, it also suffered from uneven performances and dialogue delivery. Kasturba will be staged at Pune's Radisson Blu hotel and will also travel to Delhi.

Veteran artist Sakti Burman, currently showing 60 years of his watercolours at an exhibition in Delhi, on his varied influences and painting fantasies

VANDANA KALRA

DRAWING EXTENSIVELY from the East and the West, Sakti Burman is known to seamlessly merge myth and reality. Painted in vivid colours, his works are often populated with mythical and mythological figures. Shuttling between Paris and Delhi, the artist is currently showing six decades of his watercolour and pen and ink works at Art Alive Gallery in Delhi. Burman, 84, talks about his varied influences and painting fantasies. Excerpts:

I was reading how in the '60s when you were in Paris and would exhibit at Pundole Art Gallery in Mumbai, most of the works used to be watercolours. Does this exhibition remind you of that time?

I showed at Pundole for years. Watercolours were easier to carry, which is why I would mostly exhibit those. I would experiment with them, not just the subject but also how I painted. Now, I don't use watercolour that much but I draw and sketch a lot. Until recently, I used to carry my sketchbook everywhere I went, In this exhibition, there are several of my drawing and sketches. I would just make them and forget about them. Maite (his wife) would keep them properly.

Among the earliest works in the exhibition, from the '50s, are two large watercolours, Through the Gate of Udaipur and Kashmir. Over the years, you have continued to paint your travels.

The works in the '50s were made when I was still an art student in Kolkata. I would travel with two or three friends. We painted what we saw. We often travelled to Delhi too, where we would stay at the polytechnic in Old Delhi and travel to Qutub Minar to paint the monument. We used to also go to the railway station. Travelling allows you to observe different cultures. I had read about the frescoes in Italy but when I travelled there (in the late '50s) and encountered the frescoes of artists such as Giotto, Piero della Francesca and Simone Martini, it inspired me to bring that effect and texture in my works. The few years of my childhood that I spent in Bidyakut (Bangladesh) are also nostalgic. I have not been there for years, but I am told the place the changed.

Though you moved to France in your twenties, you often exhibited in India. For some years now, you spend the work here, which is why I always continued to exhibit in India. I recall having a thought many years ago if I should move back to India, but many people around me were of the opinion that life will be more difficult here. Some years ago, I decided to buy a house in Delhi, and that makes it easier for us to come and stay here for months. Last year, the gallery I worked with in Paris also shut. I had some proposals but I haven't taken anything yet.

wanted to pursue art?

When my brother drew, I would intently watch him but I also used to draw a lot as a child. When I was in school, I began doing larger drawings and that perhaps led me to painting. During the freedom movement, I made portraits of Gandhiji and Nehru. Once Nehru was in Dibrugarh and was delivering a lecture, I showed him a portrait I had done, which he very graciously signed. He had a beautiful handwriting. I was looking for that portrait recently but unfortunately I seem to have lost it.

My teachers used to appreciate my drawings in school and encouraged me to join art school. My father had several businesses, which my brothers continued. When I shared my desire to study art, they were all concerned about my future but were happy I was doing something different. Thankfully, things fell in place. I got admission in France. I was able to devote time to my art; I only worked

I build my own stories. There are figures from Greek and Indian mythology — Shiva, Krishna — and I paint scenes around them. You see my memories in my works. I also bring in fantasy in my works, which also has Indian and Western influences as a designer in a textile house briefly.

We also see a lot of mythological characters in your works but you borrow the characters not the stories.

I build my own stories. Sometimes the canvas guides you. There are figures from Greek and Indian mythology — Shiva, Krishna — and I paint scenes around them. You see my memories in my works. As a child, I was fascinated with Pandora's casket In English literature, I read stories from Greek and Roman mythology. When I went to Egypt and Greece, I was searching for these stories, but obviously things don't stay the same. In my works, I also bring in fantasy, which has Indian and Western influences.

In your fantastical depictions there is no violence. Is that deliberate?

I don't like violence, we see so much of it around us. I am not a Gandhian but I do support his philosophy of non-violence. In some of the works I painted guns but that's because people would question why I wasn't depicting violence. I like to create layered works and have often used mirror as a metaphor for reflection — intended for people to ponder on what they see.

Rhythm Divine

Rap artiste Divine on his first album, Kohinoor, and staying true to his art

PARTH KHATAU

ENTERING THE fray as an underground rap artiste in 2011, Divine rose to fame in 2013 with the release of his single Yeh Mera Bombay, which caught the attention of record label Song Music India. They were quick to tie him down to a contract. Ever since, the Mumbai-based rapper has come a long way. After the success of Gully Boy (2019), a film that brought attention to the rap and hip-hop scene in the country, Divine, an artiste who has only released singles, is finally out with his first ever album. Excerpts from an interview:

How big was it for you to bag an international record company for the album?

It's a huge deal for any hip-hop artiste, let alone an Indian hip-hop artiste. I think this will help bring so much more attention and support to the movement here in India. It can only mean good things for the scene.

You're known to not indulge in too much dialogue with record labels on pondering to mass demand. How important is it to be true to your art?

It's definitely essential. It's probably the only thing that matters. The moment you cater to trends or pay attention to what people think about you, or what you are expected to do, people will see through you. Being honest and authentic is key.

You have an aggressive style of

rapping. In the track Kohinoor, you've mentioned artistes who indulge in plagiarism. What's your take on it? If you say what you mean, and if you have something to say, you don't need to copy others' words. The sooner you develop your style and your flow, the better. Speaking of the album, it wasn't just about spitting verses. There are a lot of things that interest me, excite me and songs such as Too hype with Sid Sriram, and Chal Bombay are an effort to bring that other side out.

After Gully Boy, Indian rap has got mainstream attention. How much credit do you take for that?

I alone am not responsible for getting the scene the attention it is getting. There are a lot of rap artistes who have made that possible. Yes, I might be the face of Indian hip-hop and I do believe that I have a style and flow that's mine and unique, and not something a lot of people in the scene can claim to have.

How long does it take to write a track? Why is the album called Kohinoor?

It could take minutes or days. It totally depends on my mood, what I am thinking, what's on my mind. There is no set pattern but I try and complete a song in a day. Kohinoor means mountain of light, and we as a hip-hop scene are in the limelight. It is time to take over.

Weaving a Narrative

Four young designers in Bhutan used Khadi for a textile presentation to pay a tribute to Gandhi

EKTAA MALIK

THE OPEN promenade of the Royal Textile Academy in Thimpu, with its pagoda-like awnings and carvings, was an interesting backdrop for Khadi-Thagzo, a textile presentation showcased recently in Bhutan. Thagzo in Bhutanese means "the art of weaving", which is intrinsic to the region's ethos. The presentation, which invoked and interpreted Gandhi through his chosen fabric, marked his 150th birth anniversary. The evening was graced by members of the Bhutan royal family, with Vinay Saxena, Chairman of India's Khadi and village Industries Commission, as the guest of honour. An initiative of the Indian Embassy, Bhutan, and Fashion Design Council of India, Khadi-Thagzo had four young Bhutanese designers: Chandrika Tamang, Kencho Wangmo, Tshering Choden (Chimmi) and Sangay Choden presenting their vision of the handspun fabric. Three Indian designers — Rajesh Pratap Singh, Samant Chauhan and Anamika Khanna - showcased their Khadi designs as well, while six Indian designers — Anjana Bhargay, Nitin Bal Chauhan, Paras Bairoliya, Payal Jain, Rahul Mishra and Reynu Tandon — created an allwhite khadi ensemble each. We caught up with the new fashion brigade of Bhutan:

Chandrika Tamang

One saw bold mustard, flowy capes and some daring hemlines by Tamang. "I have taken inspiration from sarees, our national dress Kira, and the Gho for the silhouettes, and for the embellishments. I have used inferences of Bhutanese architecture and Dzongkha numericals. I also mixed our traditional weaves with Khadi, as they compliment each other well," says the 34-year-old, who has a studio in Thimpu. Tamang uses a lot of natural materials and weaves them by hand. "I always wanted to make things with my own hands. I wanted to fill the void in the market regarding contemporary Bhutanese clothing," she adds.

Kencho Wangmo

An interpretation of the Gandhi topi, rimmed glasses, straight cuts and sharp tailoring in shades of white, beige and cream dominated the collection. Long jackets, trousers and simple dresses were the highlight. The Khadi-Thagzo textile presentation was a proud day for the mother of two; besides her presenting her work beyond borders, her son was also making his modeling debut. He wore maroon robes, the signature of Buddhist monks, and lead a group of students. "I wanted to showcase the essence of what Gandhi means for me. I have used minimal embellishments but they are all hand-stitched," says the 36-year-old.

Sangay Choden

A former actor, and now a successful entrepreneur, Choden has donned many hats before she finally became a full-time fashion designer. "My mother was a weaver, and I helped her with the pre and post loom process of weaving. I started out with making clothes for my friends," said Choden. For Khadi-Thagzo, she showcased 'Era', a collection using handwoven ahimsa silk. "I have taken the 1940s timeline, when weaving Khadi was used as an assertion against the British, and have gone forward to 2040 to predict a futuristic look," she adds. There were dresses and white pantsuits; but the takeaway of the collection was a creation that blended the kira and the sari.

Tshering Choden

"Khadi reminded me of monks, monasteries and drapes. I bought Bhutanese raw silk Khamar — worn by the tantric monks — which matched with the Indian khadi. I wanted to break the idea that maroon was the colour of conservative drapes," says Paro-based Choden, the name behind the Chimmi House of Design. Offshoulder dresses, bolero jackets, capes and jump-suits in bold maroon were juxtaposed with white by Choden. "I accessorised the look with traditional Komas and heavy antique silver jewellery to reflect our ornate monasteries," she says, adding, "The fashion scene in Bhutan is evolving, and we are headed down a path that is slow and new. Bhutanese designers follow sustainable production, which the world is waking up to now."
