It was frenzy at Shah Rukh Khan's house even before the clock struck 12 on his birthday, when fans of the star travelled across the globe to get a glimpse of their favourite actor. Members of two fan clubs — Chennai fan club SRKChennaiFC and SRKUniverse — also showed up in large numbers. In fact, SRK Chennai started their party by 6 pm, with fans dancing to songs from SRK films. Co-founders Sudhir Kothari from Chennai and Rakshit Shah from Mumbai even got T-shirts and banners to them, and also provided them with dinner before they went off to Khan's abode. "There are fans from the US, UK, Turkey, Lebanon, Iran, Egypt, China, Hong Kong, Peru and Bolivia among other countries besides different parts of India," says Rakshit.

And while Mumbai faced sudden heavy rains, the fans were not deterred from celebrating. The crowd moved from hundreds to thousands in number, with some space left for the road traffic outside Mannat. When the rain subsided, SRK came out to his balcony and thanked his fans, causing uproarious cheering and applause. However, the actor — who always meets the media on his birthday, cuts a cake and makes announcements for his next films — did not keep up to that tradition this year. "Obviously it is not possible for him to come out and meet everyone, but this is fine for us," says Nishant who has travelled from Kolhapur. Meanwhile, the fan clubs also conduct charity activities in SRK's name. "We have charity activities on behalf of Shah

Katrina finds love again?

DC CORRESPONDENT

Katrina Kaif and Vicky Kaushal have recently sparked dating rumours, and their recent appearance together at a Diwali party has sparked further speculation about their relationship status. A friend of Katrina spilled the beans: "They are not seeing each other formally, but they are definitely interested in each other's company. From what we gather, they do find the time to catch up on the phone. I'd say this is a developing relationship. Let's give them time and space, shall we?"

Ever since Ranbir Kapoor broke up with Katrina, she has been on a heart-mending mission and has been unwilling to get into another relationship until she was sure. Vicky is single and very charmed by Kaif. He has been heard telling friends how beautiful he finds her. This relationship could get serious. Let's wait and watch.

Ash, 'the real hero'; Not SRK

There's been a lot of false reporting regarding the accident at the Bachchans' Diwali party where Aishwarya Rai Bachchan's publicist was injured when her clothes caught fire

OUR CORRESPONDENT

According to reports that were widely circulated on the day after Diwali, "Aishwarya Rai's publicist was rescued from a catastrophic accident by none other than Shah Rukh Khan who rushed to the lady's rescue and doused the fire."

However, a prominent guest at the Bachchan bash who was a first-hand witness to what transpired says Shah Rukh was nowhere in the picture.

"Archana Sadanand (Aishwarya's publicist) was walking down the stairs when her dupatta caught fire from a diya. In no time all her clothes were aflame. Guests present were too stunned to do anything. It was Aishwarya who rushed and tore away the burning portion of Archana's dupatta," says the eyewitness. We wonder where Shah Rukh

Khan came into the picture, and who decided to make him the hero of the story. Reports say Salman Khan had tweeted about SRK being "the real hero". Strange, because Salman too wasn't at the Diwali bash! Incidentally Archana Sadanand is still in the hospital recovering from the burn injuries.

Rana back in business

After having been MIA for quite a few months, actor Rana Daggubati was finally spotted in Hyderabad on Saturday, making his way to the Gachibowli Stadium. The Baahubali star, who is a co-owner of the ISL Hyderabad FC franchise, dropped in at the dugout to spend quality time with the team and to cheer them up ahead of the team's first match on Saturday evening. The actor even left behind an encouraging tweet later, saying, "With @HydFCOfficial team before the first home game tonight at Gachibowli Athletic Stadium. Come on Hyderabad, it's time to get behind our boys and fill up our fortress (sic)."

Rana's appearance seems to have made quite a splash on social media after it was extensively reported about the actor was not in the best of health.

APSRTC thanks KCR

Chief Minister K. Chandrasekhar Rao is facing many problems after the RTC strike started. All groups which were the backbone of the Telangana statehood agitation have started abandoning him. Even his newfound friends have started troubling him. AP Chief Minister Y.S. Jagan Mohan Reddy queered the pitch for him by agreeing to merge the APSRTC with the government, something that is seen to have sparked off the TSRTC employees' strike. KCR had stated at a press conference that it is not possible to merge the RTC with the government as announced by Jagan. The AP government clearly took KCR's comments seriously and decided to show him that it is possible. It said that the process will be completed within six months. After this, the APSRTC employees are thanking KCR while the TSRTC staff are angry with their own CM and former friend.

Jagan queered the pitch for KCR by agreeing to merge the APSRTC with the government, something that is seen to have sparked off the TSRTC employees' strike.

KCR silences ministers

The silence of ministers in the Chandrasekhar Rao Cabinet is irking the striking RTC workers and opposition parties no end. Though initially, ministers Talasani Srinivas Yadav, Errabelli Dayakar Rao and Puvvada Ajay Kumar spoke against the strike, they fell silent later. There is talk in the TRS that KCR cautioned the ministers over their statements. The CM is said to have told the ministers that only he will handle the situation.

Why KCR is angry with RTC workers

TRS ministers and leaders are curious to find out why Chief Minister K. Chandrasekhar Rao has taken such a strong stand against the RTC employees strike and why he is not prepared to address the issues raised by the unions. Word is that KCR is irked that RTC workers canvassed against the TRS during the Assembly elections in December 2018. The RTC workers particularly drivers and conductors reportedly appealed to passengers not to vote for the TRS as KCR had betrayed them with false promises. They were angry the CM did not fulfil his promise of extending 44 per cent salary fitment benefit. Though KCR had announced the benefit, they have not received the full amount.

Social boycott in AP

The talk has now turned to boycott in Andhra Pradesh. Telugu Desam president N. Chandrababu Naidu says if AP Chief Minister Y.S. Jagan Mohan Reddy continues with his current string of controversial policies and decisions, he will face a social boycott. Stung to the quick, YSRC leaders said the people had already boycotted Naidu in the Assembly elections. When the people are happy why will they boycott Jagan, a YSRC leader asked. After his defeat in the elections, Naidu has been staying at Hyderabad for two days a week. YSRC leaders in their jab said if Naidu continues to make false allegations against Jagan, the people will send him to Hyderabad permanently.

Naidu tries to mollify Vamsi

Telugu Desam chief N. Chandrababu Naidu who is known for his long speeches has suddenly taken to writing "love letters". After the resignation of legislator Vallabhaneni Vamsi from the party and the Assembly, he and Naidu exchanged long letters, the TD chief explaining why he should not quit and the miffed party member explaining why the parting of ways had become inevitable. Surprisingly, Naidu assured support to Vamsi even after he resigned, against the norm of blackballing anyone who has quit the party. Notably, Naidu did not bother to write letters or otherwise try and mollify the four Rajya Sabha members who joined the BJP. Two of them were seen to be his closest aides. Then why the special show of affection to Vamsi? It was explained that Naidu wanted to persuade Vamsi against joining the YSRC and strengthening the party locally. The MPs had joined the BJP and not the YSRC after their resignation. Clearly, not all rivals are the same.

Suresh Babu riled over budgets!

Even as Venky Mama looks at a December release, producer Suresh Babu is not pleased

SURESH KAVIRAYANI
DECCAN CHRONICLE

While everyone's awaiting the release date of the Venkatesh-and-Naga-Chaitanya starrer Venky Mama, we hear rumours of producer Suresh Babu losing it over the film's ₹50-crore budget. "Suresh Babu was out of the city, touring on a pilgrimage for a few days and around that time, the team spent a lot, which jacked up budget," informed a source, who went on to add that after he returned, Suresh gave a tongue lashing to the team about going over the budget.

As for the release date, the source added that Suresh Babu was planning to release the film either in the first week of December or on December 25.

"The producer is now looking for the available dates and is sticking to releasing the film in December and most probably in time for the Christmas holidays," the source added.

Saturday was supposedly the last day of the shoot with a little "patch work" remaining. "The post-production work is in full swing and the comic drama will be ready by November end," the source further said.

Anasuya goes missing

Anusuya does not attend Meeku Matrame Chepta's media interaction after its release, and the world's back to speculating

All's not well in paradise after all. A day or so after we'd reported that Anusuya and the Arjun Reddy actor Vijay Deverakonda had buried their differences, Anusuya was missing in action (MIA) during Meeku Matrame Chepta's promotional event held at a preview theatre in Hyderabad on Saturday.

Interestingly, the entire team, including producer Vijay Deverakonda, was in attendance at the event and Anusuya was conspicuous by her absence. Many at the event enquired about why Anusuya hadn't turned up at the event.

We had previously reported that the popular anchor and actress had done rigorous promotions before the film's release; she had even showed up alongside Vijay for one of those. But her absence from the Saturday's event, the first after the film's release, has got tongues wagging again.

"The team visited a few theatres on Friday and it seems they hadn't invited Anusuya for it. The anchor was hurt for being ignored and she even left the film team's WhatsApp group. That's why she didn't turn up for the event on Saturday morning," says a source. — SK

Lavanya Tripathi takes a shot at hockey

SASHIDHAR ADIVI
DECCAN CHRONICLE

Lavanya Tripathi has not been signing Telugu films of late, but she's always been up for grabbing interesting roles.

And staying true to her character, the Srirastu Subhamastu star has signed a Telugu film, A1 Express, which we hear is a sports drama starring Sundeep Kishan. Lavanya, we're told, felt that she had a challenging and substantial role in the film, something, she says, she's been keen on doing for a long time. So the actress quickly gave the nod after listening to the director Dennis Jeevan Kanukolanu's narration.

"Lavanya was excited because the film is a sports drama, a genre she hasn't yet ventured into. Also, the film offers great scope for performance, and the fact that she had to learn the ropes of the sport (hockey) added to her high," says a source aware of the development.

This is time second time Sundeep and Lavanya are sharing screen after Maayavan.

Sumanth to star in Kavaludaari remake

Days after Rajasekhar backed out from a bilingual project, Sumanth takes it up

Actor Sumanth had just announced a day ago that his next film will be a remake of the Malayalam film, Padayottam.

Now, the Malli Raava star has made another announcement about starring in another Telugu remake, this time of a Kannada film, titled Kavaludaari. The emotional thriller will be simultaneously remade in Telugu and Tamil with a different cast and crew. Interestingly, Rajasekhar was earlier marked out to star in this film. However, the actor backed out from the project owing to creative differences with producer G. Dhananjayan, opening up the opportunity to Sumanth. And as Sumanth, who was fascinated by the film's plotline, got on board. Directed by Pradeep Krishnamoorthy, the film, which went on floors recently, is expected to be completed in a single schedule by January 2020.

Vishal's stunts

The trailer of the film, Action shows Vishal in full flow

"Intense and high-octane" is how one would like to describe the trailer of the Telugu version of actor Vishal's forthcoming film, Action. Directed by Sundar C., the action entertainer's trailer (Telugu version) was released on Friday by filmmaker Puri Jagannadh. It features Vishal in a never-seen rugged appearance.

Action, we're told, is a revenge drama, which unfolds against the backdrop of two countries engaged in a major tussle.

"The trailer is loaded with high-octane stunt sequences that just give a glimpse of what the audience can expect," says Srinivas Adepur who is releasing the film in Telugu. He further adds, "Amid this international political angle between two countries, there is also an emotional family moments that touches the audience. This will leave them with heavy heart."

The Abhimanyudu star is confident that Action, which is releasing this month, will strike a chord at the box office.

Anu gets candid

Actress Anu Emmanuel reflects on her showbiz stint

For someone who has been lying low with a string of ordinary performances at the box office, actress Anu Emmanuel's latest hit, Namma Veettu Pillai, comes as a welcome break. The actress states that she believed in the script when she signed the film. Clearly, that faith is paying off!

"This success has rejuvenated me and given me a lot of confidence to try and attempt roles in more content-driven films," she says.

But the actress doesn't seem too fazed about her films not doing well at the box office, saying that she's been putting in equal efforts for every film she does. "If it's a 9-5 job, then things may be in your control, but what I realised is that in showbiz, all you can do is put in efforts; the results are not in your hands. Also, luck plays a vital role in the industry," she adds.

As for why she's been missing in action since those box office debacles in Telugu, she says she hasn't come across any good script.

All said and done, the Majnu star is apparently trying to understand the dynamics of the industry. "For an outsider like me, it's even more challenging to strike a balance between a commercial film and an offbeat one. I've made a few mistakes in the past in terms of choosing my scripts. For instance, I've turned down a film, which went on to become a super hit. But then I realised that it's all a part of the game, and I am still trying to figure out what works and what doesn't work."

United for change

As a part of its silver jubilee celebration, Jai Vakeel foundation is bringing together works of eminent artists as a part of the fundraiser

TRISHA GHOROI

As a foundation driving to provide specially abled children the facility they need to thrive in society, Jai Vakeel Foundation, Mumbai is celebrating its 75th year, and to mark the milestone a fundraiser titled Champions of Change is being organised. Curated by prominent sculptor Arzan Khatambatta, the fundraiser will showcase resin sculptures made by Arzan and painted by well-known names from the art industry, including Hyderabad-based Fawad Tamkanat.

Being Arzan's curatorial debut, this fundraiser is special in its own way. "I have taken part in fundraisers which others have organised but this is the first time I'm curating. I go to the school quite often because it's close to my studio as well. After knowing their work and realising the super stuff they are doing, I decided to take this head-on," says Arzan who has been working on this project for the last one year.

A humble fundraiser, which was supposed to have only 25 sculptures, grew three folds, thanks to the enthusiastic donors who are in awe of the foundation's work. "For the last few years I have made a conscious effort to display my work at best in the major galleries around the country and abroad for exhibitions. Seeing my work at those exhibitions, the organiser and the show's curator Arzan Khatambatta felt that I can be a part of the 75 artist team to display their artwork. Interestingly, I am the only one from Hyderabad to be a part of the exhibition. They called me three months ago and told about the initiative of showcasing resin sculptures made by Arzan and painted by well-known names from the art fraternity to raise funds for the specially-abled children supported by the organization," says Fawad Tamkanat, considered as one of the most exceptional Indian artists.

Arzan reminisces, "The first meeting that I had with them, it was in August 2018, so basically, at that time, we started with a very comfortable number of 25 pieces and 25 artists. And then, because of their work the kind of response they got from their donors, we went to 50 pieces then 75 and more. It's become a mega show from something we planned on a very small basis only because of the kind of work they do." The curator was excited to get his fellow artist involved in this project and was humbled by their response, he adds, "I was more than happy calling all the artists and there were so many of them willing to contribute towards it. Now, we have a wonderful collection at Tao art gallery. I'm overwhelmed to see all the pieces together."

Shedding light on the name of the fundraiser, Arzan explains that there are many champions involved in bringing about a change. He says, "I would say the champions are the teachers themselves, the donors are the champions as well because, without them, this would not have been possible. Even my fellow artists, who have poured out their hearts. These are all the champions who have come together to bring about a change and that's why it's called Champions of Change."

Known for his metal sculptures, Arzan decided to go for resin for this particular show because it was the only medium that was ideal, given the magnitude of the show. And as for the design, he wanted to bring out the innocence he sees in the students at the school, keeping in mind the buyer's aesthetic. "I wanted to show innocence, something that people would find cute and would not hesitate to keep in their homes. The sculpture can be on the floor, by the side of the sofa or you can put it on a table. So the entire design is very comfortable to live with," says the sculptor.

Painted by prominent artists from all over the country and the exhibition includes works of Manu Parekh, Jayasri Burman, Paresh Maity, Seema Kohli, Jaideep Mehrotra, and Bose Krishnamachari. Apart from established artists, Arzan made it a point to give an opportunity to young artists as well. "First, when it was 25, we had only very big names because you need big names for the fundraiser, but then when the number became 75, I requested Jai Vakeel to let me call some junior artists who never exhibited before and they've done such fabulous work. These are artists who have never worked on 3D before have painted pieces which have come out so well," adds the curator with a smile. The sculptor who has been associated with the foundation for 15 years is excited to be a part of this milestone. "I go to the school and every time I come out, I am so humbled by the kind of work they have done and you see their smiling faces, I always come out very happy. And I am so glad that I could help them collect this amount. I am extremely happy because I know they'll use it in the right way and it'll be very useful for them. I'm extremely excited to be a part of this."

Artwork by Fawad Tamkanat on display

“The inspiration behind my work was my early memories as a child when there would be lots of sparrows coming to a water bowl at a tree in my house to quench their thirst. All those afternoon memories with my parents were brought alive through the painting of tree leaves, flowers and sparrows. I have kept my work very minimalist as it should appeal to the children by using only straight lines, a playful take on my memories. This sort of work I used to do in my early days. In a way, it is my way of giving back to the society through art

The power of petitions

Currently, there is a petition on online platform Change.org asking for onscreen violence against women and girls to come with a statutory warning. More than 50,000 people have signed a petition.

Mahika Banerji of Breakthrough, who first sent this petition to Prasoon Joshi (Chairperson, Central Board of Film Certification), says, "When actors are shown smoking cigarettes or drinking onscreen, health advisories and statutory warnings immediately pop up in the corner, alerting us against the hazards. But when a person is shown terrorising a woman onscreen and hitting her while claiming to love her, we don't see any trigger warnings. Ironically, both these scenes played out in the recent film Kabir Singh. When some of us took to social media and objected to the glorification of violence, we were dismissed saying, 'violence on women is normal' and 'how else will a passionate man show that he loves a woman?'"

Interestingly, all the online petitions have been started by people who have a strong urge to create change. "The redraw misogyny onscreen campaign was started by Breakthrough to counter misogyny in Indian cinema," states Nida Hasan, country director, Change.org. But do petitions really make a difference or are they merely instances of 'slacktivism'?

NO SINGLE SOLUTION

"Maybe not in isolation, but petitions do make a difference. Especially when it is the consolidated response of those who are expressing themselves to people in positions of power and who have the capacity to bring in effective change. This is further enhanced by the outreach and popularity of social media," explains Mahika, adding, "When we at Breakthrough published the petition to the CBFC demanding that onscreen violence against women and girls be called out for what it is — we received a lot of support due to social media and celebrity backing, from Swara Bhaskar. Now, we're almost 50,000 signatures in."

Closer to home, the Errum Manzil petition was started by a descendent of the Nawab's fam-

Uday Peddireddi from Hyderabad, whose petition successfully managed to prevent hundreds of trees from being cut when a national highway was about to be built ily to raise public awareness and garner public support for the cause. "The family also filed a legal petition in court. It is common for those who move court to also start online petitions to demonstrate public support for their cause," adds Nida. No doubt, petitions with millions of signatures send a powerful message about the will of the citizens. "Online campaigns help create awareness and bring the issue to the public domain with ease. The fact that millions of signatures have been made to a campaign, makes the person whose attention and action is sought to act responsibly," says RTI activist Vijay Gopal.

IMPACT STORIES

Citizens have widely used online platforms to express their concerns and mobilise support for environmental issues. Many have gone on to create impact stories. Like Uday Peddireddi from Hyderabad, whose petition successfully managed to prevent hundreds of trees

Personal stories that speak to people's hearts can drive large-scale change. For example, the government decided to restrict the sale of acid after an acid attack survivor Laxmi told her story from being cut when a national highway was about to be built. Shilpi Sahu, a marathon runner from Bengaluru, also filed a petition that played a role in persuading Procam International, the organisers of the Mumbai Marathon, to considerably reduce plastic and have a greener marathon in 2019.

Others, like Spurthi Kokinaka, a WASH and gender rights advocate, started a campaign demanding that the Telangana State Women's Commission have a website so that it can push women's safety agenda forward online as well. Yet another campaign by Almas Virani, a single mother who is raising her seven-year-old son to question gender discrimination, focused on gender equality.

Errum Manzil petition was started by a descendent of the Nawab's family to raise public awareness and garner public support for the cause

"Through her campaign, she convinced Rajiv Chilaka of Green Gold Animation, the makers of Chota Bheem, to make the character of Chutki stronger," says Nida.

"These success stories prove that petitions can inspire real change and millions start talking about it. Then the resolver is bound to act as the issue comes out in the public domain," adds Vijay. So, does adding your name to an online petition make a difference to a cause? Says Nida, "Personal stories that speak to people's hearts can drive large-scale change. For example, the government decided to restrict the sale of acid after an acid attack survivor Laxmi told her story. When a petition is directed to the right decision maker who has the power to make the specific change, we see great results."

PETITIONS MATTER

When targeted to the right decision maker, a petition does not need a large number of signatures. "For example, 19-year-old Bengaluru student Garvita Gulhati's petition addressed to National Restaurants Association of India, asked for all restaurants to adopt the #GlassHalfFull concept to stop wastage of water in the food and beverage industry. With just 13,000 signatures on her petition, Garvita was able to work with NRAI to make this petition a victory on World Water Day this year," says Nida.

The fact that millions of signatures have been made to a campaign, makes the person whose attention and action is sought to act responsibly
